AMERICAN FLYERS MAKE NEW HOP OF 500 MILES

World Circumnavigators Clear the Jump in About 7 Hours Over Sea From Panamashiru to Lake in Rear of Hitokaphu Bay, Yetorofu Island.

JAPANESE EXTEND ARMEN CORDIAL AID

Mainland of Japan May Be Reached Tomorrow, With an Audience by Prince Regent at the Naval Base on Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.
YETOROFU ISLAND, Kuriles,
May 19.—The three American Army airplanes flying around the world landed here this afternoon at 2:50 o'clock, having made the 400-mile flight from Paramashiru Island in a little over seven hours.
The landing was made on Lake Tohmoze. This is in the rear of Hitokaphu Bay, an indentation on the southeast shore of this island.
A landing place on the lake was prepared by Japanese and American sailors from the destroyers Pope and Amatsukaze several days ago, when it was determined that Hitokaphu Bay was too rough for the planes to be brought down safely on its waters.
Buoys were placed in the lake and arrangements made for the planes to reach the shore. This was the third landing place chosen for the flight. The first, at the end of their journey, the first, Bettowest anchorage, on the northwest coast of this island, having been abandoned in favor of Hitokaphu Bay some weeks ago because of ice there.

Start Made in Early Morning Fog After Sunday of Snow.

By the Associated Press.
PARAMASHIRU ISLAND, Ku-
riles, May 19.—The American Army flyers encircling the world sailed down on to Kashiwabara Bay here Saturday morning in a snowstorm, after a freezing gale had swept them off their course and to the shores of Bering Island to the north. This morning they mounted from the water and disappeared in the early morning fog. They had waited for good weather. Yesterday was a disappointment. Snow fell from time to time and a biting wind blew continuously.

Today early dawn in this latitude
it comes before 2 o'clock—found the flyers astir. The low hanging fog threatened another postponement, but from the U. S. S.
Hikokaphu Bay, Yetorofu Island, and from the Japanese destroyer Hamakaze, half way between the two stops, came reports of excellent flying conditions.

The air cruiser New Orleans took the air at 7:35 a. m., quickly followed by the Boston and the Chicago in order. The take-off was easy. The airplanes circled once ahead, and, the flagplane Chicago, taking the lead, all three disappeared in the morning haze. The air cruisers were refueled and put in shape yesterday for the jump.
The air line distance from Kashiwabara Bay here to Hitokaphu Bay is about 100 miles. The Japanese destroyer Hamakaze, here to welcome the Americans on behalf of the Japanese Government, sailed yesterday (Sunday) to take up a position about half way between the two points, with a view to rendering aid to the airmen if necessary.

Sunday proved a dismal day. A cold wind blew from morning until night, and snow fell intermittently.
The work on the air planes finished, the aviators spent the remaining hours resting, reading and playing cards. In the evening they were honor guests aboard the second Japanese destroyer, the Tokikaze, in the bay here.
Lieut. Lowell Smith, acting flight commander, responded to the greetings of the official representatives of the Japanese Government by speaking to them in his own language. He said: "We are inex-haustibly glad to have arrived in Japan."

Flies and Planes in Excellent Condition.

TOKIO, May 19.—The American world fliers and their airplanes were in excellent condition when they arrived at Yetorofu Island from Paramashiru, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Today's Leg of Round-World Flight

The hop was from Paramashiru Island in the Kuriles group of islands. Yetorofu (Iturup as it appears on some maps), a distance of 500 miles.

LAST MESSAGE FROM DIXMUDE FOUND ON CORSICAN COAST

Gasoline Given Out, Wind Like Tempest, Says Scrawled Note
In Bottle.

By the Associated Press.
AJACCIO, Corsica, May 19.—
"Gasoline given out. We are adrift. Wind like a tempest. Dix-mude's crew. Adieu and vive la France."

This scrawled message found in a bottle washed up on the Corsican coast at Ajaccio, is believed to be the last message from the ill-fated airship Dixmude, lost in the Mediterranean last December.

The French super-Zeppelin Dix-mude at the time of its destruction was attempting a distance and endurance record. It disappeared in a series of storms, with 52 men aboard.

On Dec. 28 the body of the commander, Lieut. du Plessis de Gren-adan, was found off the coast of Southern Sicily. Later, charred parts of the airship were picked up and a board of inquiry reported that the Dixmude had been struck by lightning.

LONDON-PARIS PLANE SERVICE

Plan Express Airships to Travel 100 Miles Per Hour.

LONDON, May 19.—Night flights to Paris by after-dinner express airplanes, traveling at 100 miles an hour, are to be attempted in the near future by the New Imperial Airways Limited, to enable business men to dine in London after a day's work and get to Paris at bedtime.

Plans also are being made for a service of big planes, equipped with comfortable sleeping berths, for flights during the night from London to distant European capitals.

House Locked Up 17 Years.

For the first time in 17 years the interior of the home at 605 North Illinois street, Belleville, will be disturbed. Mr. and Mrs. George Triebe formerly lived there. In 1907
Mrs. Triebe, suffering a nervous breakdown and was committed to a State hospital. Her husband locked the house, leaving furnishings intact. No one since has entered the place, according to Alderman Jacob Wasem, who has ordered Triebe to wreck the place, because it has fallen into a state of decay that is dangerous.

The Return of Lost Articles

Depends mainly upon how thoroughly the search for them is conducted.

There's one way to cover the ground quickly, and that is through the newspaper whose circulation most widely covers St. Louis.

In short, a "Lost and Found" ad through the Post-Dis-ate and comprehensive search. Small wonder that it so successfully accomplishes the return of things

CHIPPEWA BANK CASHIER EXPECTED TO PLEAD GUILTY

Joseph S. Carr Is Under Indictment for Wrecking Institution by Looting It of $710,000.

Joseph S. Carr, under indictment for looting the defunct Chippewa Bank, of which he was cashier and largest stockholder, causing a loss of $710,000, will not follow the tactics of Arthur O. Meinerger, looter of the Night and Day Bank, and seek to delay the process of justice for his own benefit. It was learned on reliable authority today that Carr plans to plead guilty and go to prison.

The question of leniency, it is understood, has not been discussed and it is expected Carr will be given a reasonably stiff sentence. He was indicted on four charges of grand larceny and embezzlement and one charge of forgery.

Change of Venue Sought.
Carr entered a plea of not guilty before Circuit Judge Ittner last Monday and his counsel then sought a month's delay in the case, in which lawyers for the State Finance Department concurred, so that Carr might be of further assistance to the department in straightening out the bank's records for the benefit of the depositors.

The judge was willing to postpone the case only till today and Carr's counsel pleaded to ask for a change of venue today, seeking to gain time in which Carr might be helped to the finance department. However, his lawyer pointed out to Judge Ittner this desire and said his client's fate was in the hands of the State. Circuit Attorney Sidener agreed that a continuance of the case would be of help in winding up the bank's affairs.
Thereupon the judge continued the case to the June term of court.

Carr Turned Over Assets.
The Chippewa Bank was closed
Dec. 21, 1923. In an effort to cover the loss Carr turned over all his assets, including bank stock, his county home and other property.

Meinerger obtained a change of venue to Franklin County under 47 indictments in the Night and Day Bank case, alleging prejudice against him in St. Louis. He was tried a year ago on the first charge and convicted, but has started a Supreme Court fight to appeal that conviction and to prevent trial on the remaining charges.

Johnson Frees S. DAKOTA OF

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 19.— Senator Hiram Johnson has released the South Dakota delegation to the Republican national convention from its obligation to vote for him, according to a message from Pierre, quoting John Sutherland, manager of the South Dakota campaign of Johnson.

Sutherland announced today, the dispatch said, that he had received from Johnson stating that he released the South Dakota delegation "from any obligation to me at Belgian Ministers here has agreed to the necessity of a speedy settlement of the reparations problem by carrying out the findings of the Experts' Committee, and that as soon

It was also agreed, the commuternational debts should be regarded problem.

"VILLAGE SMITHY" DOOMED

Inspiration for Longfellow Poem to Go in Street Project.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 19.—The village smithy which has been preserved Longfellow's familiar verses, is doomed to disappear. It stands in St. Mary Cray, a Kentish village, and became known to the American poet when he visited the poet-ess, Eliza Cook.

The appearance of the smithy at present hardly meets the description in the poem, the "Spreading Chester Tree" vanished long ago, being felled because it darkened the neighboring houses and the building now is to go for an equality utilitarian reason; its size is inadequate for the purpose of a street-widening plan.

THIN WHITE STRIPE ON TROUSERS BEST CLEW THUS FAR IN MARGULIS MURDER

Schoolboy's Story of Seeing Man Pursuing Young Woman on Gamble
Street on Night of Killing Leads to Detention of Former Policeman.

HELD IN OBSERVATION WARD AT HOSPITAL

Trousers of Police Uniform, Found in Possession of Suspect, Apparently Had Been Washed and Pressed Recently.

A thin white stripe, on a man's trouser-leg, has led to the most definite result thus far attained in the baffling mystery of the murder of Mollie Margulis, criminally assaulted and choked to death Thursday night, presumably in the near vicinity of Gamble Playground.

Because a schoolboy had told detectives that he saw a man, with such a stripe down the side of his trousers, whom for that reason he supposed to be a policeman, pursuing a young woman on Gamble street, Thursday night, a former policeman, possessor of a police uniform, is now being held in the city hospital observation ward. He was placed in the hospital yesterday, after having been held at Police Headquarters since Friday night and undergoing six hours of questioning.

He said when questioned, that he left his room twice for brief periods Thursday night, once to buy lemons and once to change a bill. The proprietor of an adjoining store, and his wife, say the man bought lemons and change a $5 bill at the store, but that it was Thursday afternoon, not much after 3 o'clock, and that he was not at the store Thursday night.

Neurologist to Examine Him.
The former policeman, since being received in the hospital, has shown no outstanding evidence of insanity, and the physician in charge of the observation ward said today that he had no positive data, thus far, to add to certain information which the police investigators have given him as to the man's habits and tendencies.

Visiting neurologists will examine him, and he will be held for several days, in the endeavor to make a thorough diagnosis possible.

The case, as it has been made to appear through statements obtained from persons most closely acquainted with the man, is one of an unusual pathological character, the particulars of which cannot be told here. It is being considered in connection with the autopsy on the young woman's body.

The circumstances under which the man was dismissed from the police force, on a complaint, and the fact that a serious complaint was once made against him by a young woman, though her charge failed for lack of a positive identification, directed suspicion.

Former policeman. Before he was arrested, the regular policeman who were in the Gamble Playground vicinity Thursday night were questioned, and accounted for their movements.

Police Uniform Found.
The police uniform belonging to the former policeman is in the care of Chief of Detectives Hoagland, who says the winter trousers, which have a white stripe about a tenth of an inch wide, down the side, appear to have been washed and pressed very recently, and still show some dampness. A lighter shade of blue also has been preserved, but do not show signs of recent washing. The garments were found in a suitcase in the man's room, which is in the Gamble Playground neighborhood.

Two spots near the knee of the right leg, on the winter trousers, were examined by the City Chemist's office, but it was found that, having been pressed with a hot iron, the spots could not be analyzed chemically.

The boy who gave the detectives the information on which they sought a policeman, or the possessor of a police uniform, is Reuben
Chapman, 14 1/2 years old, of 2902 Gamble street. He is a pupil of Divoll School and the principal, W.
E. Wilcox, said today that he considered him a normally bright boy and trustworthy. Reuben was born in Russia and has been in this country but a few years. For this

"JAMIE" BROWN THE MINER, DONS HIS COURT DRESS

Lord High Commissioner Drops
Sunday School Class to Represent King in Scotland.

By the Associated Press.
AYR, Scotland, May 19.—Sabbath calm of the little mining village of Ann Bank, near here, was disturbed yesterday in an unprecedented manner. The main street was thronged with inhabitants and visitors for farewells to "Jamie" Brown on the eve of his departure with his wife and son to assume his office as Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland at Edinburgh, where he is to represent the King as the head of a court.

The old miner and his wife joined in worship at a little church as they have done for the last 40 years. Afterward the minister presented on behalf of the elders and parishioners an illuminated address expressing gratification at the appointment.

"Jamie" for the first time in 36 years failed to conduct his Sunday school class, owing to the general disturbance of his Sabbath routine.

In the afternoon Mrs. Brown entertained a number of friends at a tea at which scenes of her own make were served. Today she becomes "Her Grace" to be waited upon by numerous servants and her husband dons court dress and sword.

WOMAN GIVEN 2 TO 5 YEARS
FOR KIDNAPING MODELL BABY

Mrs. Mary De Marco Said She Took Girl to Deceive Husband, Who Wanted a Child.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—Mrs.
Mary De Marco, who kidnaped
10-week-old Corinne Modell two weeks ago, today was sentenced to two and a half to five years imprisonment, after she had pleaded guilty.

She said at the time she took the baby to deceive her husband, who, she said, wanted a child.

Mrs. De Marco also was fined $500. She presented a pathetic figure in court. She fainted after she pleaded guilty. Her 10-year-old son by a former husband, pushed his way to his mother's side and the two were separated after a heartrending scene. Mrs. De Mar-co's husband sat in the rear of the court room and took no part in the proceedings.

FRENCH BALLOON, WITH TWO MEN, BLOWN TO ENGLAND

Bag Is Caught in Storm—One Pilot
Jumps to Sea and Swims Ashore
—Other Is Rescued.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 19.—A French balloon with two occupants, which ascended at Paris Saturday evening, was blown across the English Channel, caught in a thunderstorm
Sunday afternoon over the Isle of Wight, and got out of control, flying low over the Hampshire coast.

One of the balloonists, M. Bol-lard, jumped or fell into the sea over Milford. He dived himself of his clothes in the water and swam ashore, a distance of about half a mile. He was much exhausted and was taken to a hospital.

The balloon reascended and drifted another 25 miles inland, landing at Broughton, Hampshire.
The other occupant was not injured.

PRESIDENT BACK IN HIS OFFICE Masters Bronchial Cold But Feels a Slight Weakness.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Having mastered the bronchial cold from which he had suffered since the middle of last week, President Coolidge today returned to his office.

The executive's physicians, however, said he still was feeling some of the usual after-effects of a cold, such as a slight weakness, and engagements to attend a baseball game between the Washington Americans and the Quantico Marines for the benefit of the Amer-several hundred delegates from the annual convention in Baltimore of the Independent Order of Brith

BONUS BILL A LAW WHEN SENATE UPSETS COOLIDGE VETO, 59-26

Fifty-nine Republicans, 26 Democrats and Two Farmer-Labor Senators Vote to Override President.

ELEVENTH-HOUR APPEAL BY WHITE HOUSE FUTILE

Several Republican Organization Senators
Join With Strong Democratic Lineup, Giving Measure Two Votes More Than Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Senate today overrode President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus bill. The measure now automatically becomes law, the House having taken the same action.

The vote was 59 to 26 to overthrow the veto. This was two more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

Several Republican organization leaders joined with a strong Democratic lineup in upsetting the veto on a vote which was in doubt until the last minute.

Thirty Republicans, 27 Democrats and the two Farmer-Labor Senators voted to override the veto.
Seventeen Republicans and nine Democrats voted to sustain the President.

President Coolidge himself made an eleventh-hour effort to stem the tide of support for the bill. He summoned seven Republicans favoring it to the White House, but was unable to swing over enough votes to accomplish his defeat.

How the Senate Voted.
To override the veto:
Republicans—Brundage, Brook-
hart, Burnam, Cameron, Capper, Cummings, Curtis, Dale, Elkins, Fess, Frasier, Gooding, Hale, Her-rell, Howell, Johnson, California; Jones, Washington; Ladd, Lenroot, Lodge, McLean, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Odell, Shortridge, Spencer,
Stanfield, Warren and Willis—30.

Democrats—Adams, Ashurst, Broussard, Caraway, Copeland, Dill, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Harris, Hefflin, Jones (New Mexico), Kendrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston, Robinson, Wheeler, Simmons, Smith, Trammell, Walsh (Montana) and Wheeler—27.

Farmer-Labor—Johnson (Minnesota), Shipstead—2. Total, 59.

Against overriding the veto:
Republicans—Borah, Colt, Edge, Ernst, Fernald, Greene, Keyes, McKinley, Moses, Pepper,
Phipps, Reed (Pennsylvania), Smoot, Sterling, Wadsworth and Weiler—17.

Democrats—Rayard, Bruce, Dial, Edwards, Glass, King, Shields, Swanson and Underwood—9. Total, 26.

Eleven Senators Absent.
Of the 11 Senators absent, nine were announced as in favor of the bonus and one against.

Only one pair had been arranged, Senator Randell, against, with Senators Harrison and Stephens for.

Four Republicans and three Democrats absent and unpaired—
Watson, McCormick, La Follette and Couzens (Rep.); Stanley, Walsh (Mass.) and Reed of Missouri (Dem.), all favored repassage of the bill.

Senator Owen (Dem.), Oklahoma, the other absentee, voted for the bill on its original passage, but there was no announcement as to his attitude with respect to overriding the veto.

Democrats and Galleries Cheer.
The Senate voted virtually without debate. An almost absolute silence prevailed during the roll call and as the result was announced cheering broke out in the crowded galleries.

President Coolidge ordered the sergeant-at-arms "to clear the gallery," but as he added "If the disturbance continues," the Democrats arose and applauded loudly.

The House on Saturday, by a margin of 52 votes, overrode the veto, 313 to 78, thus putting definitely up to the Senate for the second time the final word on the legislation. In 1922 the House overrode President Harding's veto of a soldier bonus bill by a vote of 258 to 54, but the Senate failed by four votes of enacting the measure.

Suddenly the breathless multitude of 50,000, the largest crowd ever attending the races at St.
Cloud, with the exception of Easter Sunday, shuddered as the premier jockey of France dug his spurs

MORE TESTIMONY ON MILLMEN'S COST GUIDE

Had Nothing to Do With Price Fixing, Defense Witnesses Testify at Hearing.

The hearing of the State's anti-trust suit against the St. Louis millmen's association was reopened today at Hotel Statler. More witnesses for the defense declared that millmen did not get together on bids for millwork and declared that the cost guide prepared by their $3000-a-year secretary-manager, J. P. Larson, was merely used as a basis for rapid calculation of millwork costs and had nothing to do with price fixing.

Moreover, Charles L. Timm, chief estimator for the Huttig Sash and Door Co., declared that the cost guide was inaccurate, incomplete, and, in fact, was no good at all. He tried it for a year, he said, and in every instance found it necessary to figure each job all over again, so he decided long since to discontinue with it.

Last week Attorney-General Bennett made much of the cost guide, questioning millmen in detail as to its use, and was told that it was not a price-fixer, but an easy way to figure costs, a sort of multiplication table.

Timm declared his company had independently on every job and sometimes, when they were underbid by another concern, he would reduce his bid in order to get a contract.

E. Julius Boehmer, chief engineer for Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., testified that he received 11 bids ranging from $11,720 to $38,337, and accepted the lowest, when work was contemplated on the seventh floor of the Rice-Stix building. This to prove that bids were not made by agreement at a fixed price. G. N. Lanagan, a city purchasing agent, produced figures on some 20 city jobs during 1917, 1918 and 1919, which showed considerable variance in the bids of various millwork firms.

Dr. Leewald Heads Training School

Dr. Alfred Leewald, head of the mental disease clinic of the local United States Veterans' Bureau, and who was for eight years assistant superintendent of the City Sanitarium, today was appointed superintendent of the new St. Louis Training School for the Feeble-Minded, to succeed Dr. George A. Johns, resigned. Appointment was made by Hospital Commissioner Jordan. The position carries a salary of $4000 a year and a house. Dr. Johns resigned to become State Psychiatricist.

$1000 TAKEN IN HOLDUP OF U. S. BARGE LINE OFFICE

Two Masked Men Lock Watchman and Hostler in Box Car at 2 A. M. on East Side River Front.

KNOCK COMBINATION FROM THE SAFE

Robbers, Dressed in Khaki Overalls, Wore Handkerchiefs Over Their Faces—Each Carried Revolvers

Two masked men held up a watchman and a negro hostler at the office of the Mississippi-Warrior River Service, Federal barge line operators, on the East Side river front, north of the Free Bridge, at 2 a. m. today, and took $1000 from the safe in the office which they opened by knocking off the combination.

They then locked Hiram Zieblin, the watchman, and Charles James, the hostler, in a box car standing nearby, and escaped. The prisoners did not attract anyone's attention for two hours. At 4 a. m. the police were notified.

The money had been kept in the office to pay freight handlers. Zieblin and James could not give a description of the robbers, except that they wore white handkerchiefs over their faces and were dressed in khaki overalls. Each carried two revolvers.

THIN WHITE STRIPE ON TROUSERS BEST CLEW IN MURDER

Man is only in the third grade at school.

Story Told by Boy.

He went over the ground today with a Post-Dispatch reporter to show where he saw a young woman being pursued.

"I left the house about 10 o'clock Thursday night," he said, "and went to meet my sister, who had been at a friend's house, but didn't find her, and started back. In the middle of the block on Gambier, nearly opposite the playground, I saw a girl, first walking fast, then starting to run, and crossing the street from south to north."

"I saw a man chasing her, and just saw him sidewise and from behind, not a good front view. There was a white stripe down his trousers. I didn't notice the coat, except that it was dark, but whether it matched the trousers or was any kind of uniform coat, I couldn't say. I thought it was a policeman chasing the girl, and supposed he was trying to arrest her."

The girl ran into the playground, and turned in such a direction that she might have come into the alley, but I didn't see her any further. I walked back to my house, and was there in a minute or so. As I got on my steps, I heard a loud scream."

Viewed Body of Girl.

"In the morning, when I heard a body had been found in a yard across the street, I went over and looked at the body before they removed it, and I was sure it was the girl I had seen."

"The police took me down to look at a man, and he looked, from behind, like the man that was chasing the girl, but I couldn't be sure it was the same man, as I didn't see a front view of the man who chased the girl."

No one else has reported hearing a scream at the time when the boy says he heard it, though there were persons awake in the neighborhood at the time.

A metal badge with the lettering "Special Policeman—25," was found yesterday by a boy—not the Shapiro boy—in an asphalt near the place where the body was found. In the rear yard of 2543 Gambier street, the boy saw the badge reflecting the sunlight, and picked it out of the pit, which was cleaned so lately as last Tuesday. The badge was not an official one of the St. Louis Police Department.

Another Theory of Crime.

As has been told, the uniformed police of the Dayton street Station, rather than the detectives assigned to the case from headquarters, are impressed with the idea that the girl was killed somewhere else, and that her body was taken, perhaps in an automobile, to the yard where it was found.

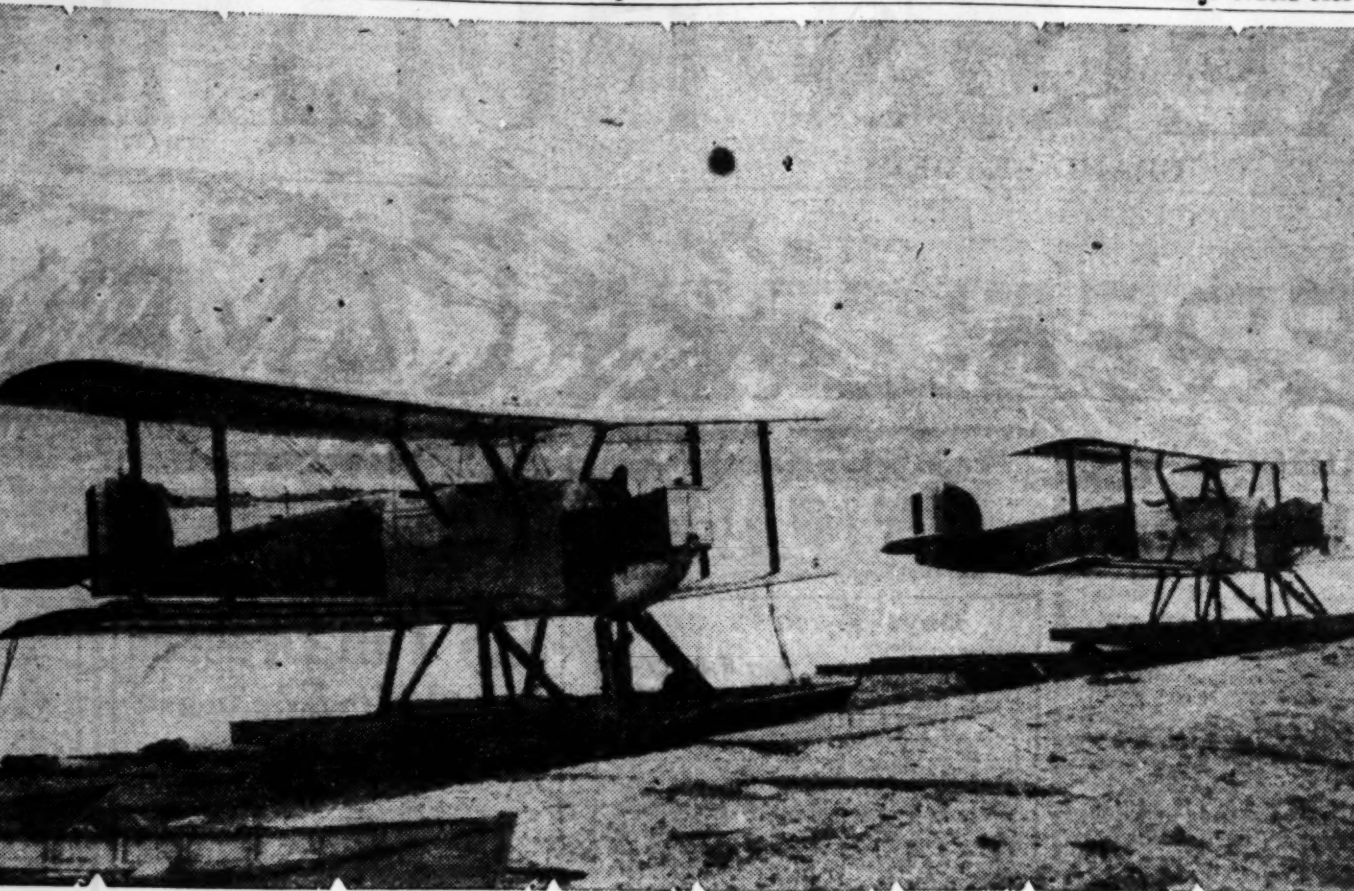

2543 Gambier street, a night postal clerk has said that he saw an automobile in the alley, near the Gambier street yard, at 2 a. m. Friday. There is no garage on the street, and none of the neighbors has a car, but it is considered possible that a "spooner's" car might seek seclusion there.

Capt. Matthews of the Dayton Street Station said today that he believed the criminal assault occurred in a building and not in the yard where the body was found, or in the adjoining playground. His reason for this belief is the absence of scratches on the parts of the body from which the clothing was removed.

There are vacant buildings in the vicinity, but it is not known whether any of these was open so that the young woman could have been carried in by her captor.

Mrs. Charles Holzhauer, in whose yard the body was found,

U. S. Round-World Planes Tied Up at Dutch Harbor to Await Maj. Martin

The aviators encountered terrible cold weather in this region. It was in flying from Dutch Harbor to Chignik that Maj. Martin and his mechanic experienced the accident that resulted in the loss of their plane and the recall of the Major from command of the flight after he had been lost in the wilds of Unalaska peninsula 11 days.

Shares the belief of the district police that the body was placed in the yard after the murder had been committed elsewhere.

She said today that she was a light sleeper, and that a dog in her house, which barks at any outside disturbance, was quiet Thursday night. Her father, J. Hober, also sleeps in a room opening on the yard. No one heard any unusual noise Thursday night or early Friday.

Mrs. Holzhauser also believed the "special police" badge found in the asphalt was placed there since Friday morning, when a thorough search of the yard was made by policemen and reporters.

Mrs. Regina Gliwinski of 2553 Gambier says she was ironing in her kitchen until after 1 a. m. Friday, and that at that hour she heard what she calls "subdued voices" in the direction of the alley. She said she went to the front door and looked out, but heard nothing further. She did not hear a scream, she says.

The weather late Thursday night was partly cloudy, and the moon was between first-quarter and full moon, giving light part of the time.

Daniel Chivvers, night watchman at Gambier Playgrounds, said today that he knew the former policeman now held as a suspect, and that, when the man was on the force, he had occasion to ask him to keep away from the playground, and not to annoy young girls there.

"I had known him only about three weeks," he said, "but I had seen her six times, and I was expecting to take her, probably this week, to see my relatives, as I was hoping that she would marry me."

Another at the funeral was Lillie Levin of 2917A Dayton street. Mrs. Mary Weyand, superintendent of Russell Home, 1214 North Garrison avenue, an institution for working women maintained by the Women's Christian Association (not identical with the Y. W. C. A.), said today that she knew the policeman held as a suspect, and that she had repeatedly asked him to keep away from the home, and not to converse with the roomers there. She said the policeman appeared to be "a fool about women," and that his actions had caused comment among the residents at the home.

Mrs. Weyand said that, though her rear room is near the alley, and she sleeps with her window open, and is a light sleeper, she heard no noise Thursday night. A roomer whose open window was not more than 25 feet from the alley, directly overlooking the fence beside which the body was found, also was not disturbed. Both women were up until nearly midnight Thursday.

Wife to Be Questioned.

A detective has gone out of town to see the former policeman's wife, from whom he is separated, and who, he has said, last cared for his uniform suit after it was dismissed from the Police Department.

The man now held as a suspect was a policeman less than a year, and was only before the court on a charge made by a young girl, who said a policeman had tried to drag her into an alley. The girl was unable to identify him, and the only result of this charge was a transference for the policeman. He was dismissed later on charges growing out of his association with a woman.

Slain Girl Buried Without Religious Ceremony.

The body of Mollie Margulis was buried about noon yesterday in the new Chevraik Dishes orthodox Jewish cemetery, at Page and Spring avenues in St. Louis County.

It was placed, without religious ceremony, in that section of the cemetery which has been set apart for those who die violent deaths, either suicides or those killed, even if without fault of their own, by others. Her grave is the first in that section, which is at a distance from the other graves.

Before the ride to the cemetery, the body was in an undertaking chapel at 4715 McPherson avenue, and there a cantor of the Hebrew faith chanted a song. The lid of the casket was lifted, both there and at the cemetery, to permit friends to look at the face, which was disfigured by the murderer's blows.

The pallbearers were associates of the young woman's father, Joseph Margulis, in the synagogue where he attends. Abraham Bernstein of 2742 Gambier street, who had lately become Miss Margulis' suitor, was there.

"I had known her only about three weeks," he said, "but I had seen her six times, and I was expecting to take her, probably this week, to see my relatives, as I was hoping that she would marry me."

GOV. SMITH CALLED 'CHAMPION OF SALOON'

U. S. Attorney at New York
Also Condemns Recent Utterances of Dr. Butler.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 12.—Gov. Smith and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, are declared to be responsible for "the two hardest blows ever struck at respect for law" by United States Attorney William Hayward.

Speaking last night from the pulpit of the James Methodist Church in Brooklyn, Hayward characterized the Governor as a man who had behind him "a 25-year record as champion of the saloon" and asserted that "the bootleggers had taken great heart" at Dr. Butler's utterances against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and his recent declaration before the Missouri Society in New York that prohibition was not enforceable.

Assailing Dr. Butler for his speech at Columbus, O., in January, 1935, in which the college head also attacked prohibition, Hayward said it had constituted "condonation of crime and encouragement of criminals" which was "as heartening to the bootleggers as it was astonishing to most of the world."

"This speech," said Hayward, "and the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law (the New York State enforcement act) were the two hardest blows ever struck at respect for law."

It was encouraging, the Federal Attorney went on, "that Dr. Butler had executed an about face on the fundamental issue" and that "he no longer excuses crime." On the contrary, he added, the Columbia president has come "to the proposition that the law must ultimately be repealed or obeyed." Hayward added that he must part company with Butler there "for he puts all the emphasis on repeal and none on obey."

Adding that he hoped Dr. Butler would join in urging persons to obey the prohibition law, Hayward turned to Gov. Smith.

"Up in Albany is a man who has done more to encourage disobedience to law even than Dr. Butler, Gov. Smith, though he tried to knock the props completely from law enforcement by repealing the Mullan-Gage law, still lets his voice be heard in favor of law enforcement. This is only amazing. But Dr. Butler isn't Gov. Smith. He hasn't behind him a 25-year record as champion of the saloon. He is president of a great university. His influence is great."

Prohibition has banished the saloon, the Federal Attorney asserted, adding: "We know and Gov. Smith and Dr. Butler know, that when prohibition goes the saloon comes back."

CHIROPRACTORS FINED FOR PRACTICING MEDICINE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Jett Assessed $50 Each—He Is Teacher in High School.
On their pleas of guilty, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Jett, chiropractors, residing at 5838 Westminster place, were each fined $50 and costs by Provisional Judge Grodzki in the Court of Criminal Correction today for practicing medicine without a license.

The charges were made against them after an inquest April 19 into the death of Mrs. Alvina Schellenberg, who died of cancer. It was testified that Jett made a blood test and diagnosed the case as cancer, as had physicians. He guaranteed a cure. It was said, and Mrs. Jett visited the Schellenbergs home daily and gave the patient electrical treatments. They were not held responsible for the death, but Health Department officials caused their arrest on the license charge.

Besides being a chiropractor, Jett is a teacher of shorthand and typewriting at Soldan High School.

SCHOOL BOY AND TEACHER KILLED BY SAME BULLET

Investigation of Murder Near Harrisburg, Pa., Dis-closes That Missive Was Fired From Old Rifle.

REVENGE MAY HAVE BEEN THE MOTIVE

Boy Said to Have Taken Pictures of Stills Which He Found in Mountain
Woods.

By the Associated Press.
HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12.—
Upon a battered leaden bullet and a worn pocket notebook, State police and county officials today pinned hopes of solving the killing of Harry Ganster, Marysville high-school student, and Leah Ellenberger, Hollidaysburg teacher, found shot to death at Lamb's Gap, near here, early Saturday.

The bullet taken from the body of the girl was that which killed both her and her companion, as they were preparing to return home after picking wild flowers on Blue Mountain. It was made for an old type of rifle. In a notebook found in the boy's pocket he had noted many secrets of his life, addresses, and a map of the mountain region in which he was killed.

The State police reconstructed his wanderings through the mountains and investigated theories of jealousy and moonshiners' revenge. Neither developed any material facts.

The theory of moonshiners' revenge gained credence when the investigators learned that the couple, while picking flowers Friday afternoon, had visited a cabin in the vicinity of the killing known as "Camp The Limit," scene of a gun battle a year and a half ago, in which Ganster figured. The tracks of Ganster's automobile led close to the camp, and there were evidences the two had picked flowers there.

The boy, according to reports to the officers, frequently visited the mountain region and was said to have taken photographs of stills which he stumbled upon in the woods. "Camp The Limit" was reported to have been used at one time by moonshiners.

The jealousy motive involved a story of revenge and mistaken identity on the part of an enraged husband, who, seeking his wife in the mountains, and believing the Ellenberger girl to be the woman he sought in company with another man, fired and killed both her and Ganster.

EVELYN NESBIT DROPS HER FIGHT FOR RETRIAL OF THAW

Counsel Withdraws Motion in Philadelphia—Faces Indictment in New York.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The motion for a new trial to determine the sanity of Harry K. Thaw was formally withdrawn today by counsel representing Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's former wife. Thaw was recently declared sane by a jury in Common Pleas Court.

Thaw is in Pittsburgh, visiting his mother, by permission of the Court.
Whether he will return here to be formally released or whether his attorneys will represent him was not made clear after the motion was withdrawn.

Thaw is under indictment in New York on charges in connection with the alleged whipping of Frederick Gump Jr., a former Kansas City high-school boy. The New York authorities sought to have Thaw returned to New York State seven years ago, when the assault is alleged to have occurred, but his mother intervened and after he had been declared insane he was confined in the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases.
A civil suit for damages brought by Gump's father was settled out of court in January.

WOMAN IN THEATER KILLS MAN WITH ACID

Dashed Fluid Into His Face—Child Says He Refused to Marry Her.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., May 18.—Three little children were made orphans last night when a woman, known to police as "Grace," dashed a bottle of acid in their father's face while he was sitting in a downtown motion picture theater, causing his death before he could be rushed to a hospital. The victim of the acid thrower was George B. Hackney, aged 30, who, according to his oldest daughter, aged 9, had been keeping company with her for some time, but had refused her repeated requests to marry the woman.

"Grace kept asking papa to marry her, but papa wouldn't do it, so Grace got mad," the little girl said. Her mother died a few years ago.

Donald Wilcox, 18, who had accompanied Hackney to the theater and was sitting beside him, also was burned severely on the hand.
After committing the deed, the woman fled from the theater and escaped in an automobile.

According to Wilcox, the woman sat across the aisle from Hackney, and, after watching the show for about an hour, said she had seen the picture before and intended to go. She arose and apparently dropped her hat, which rolled to Hackney's feet.

Hackney caught it up and as he offered it to her, the woman screamed and threw the acid in his face.

NOTHER LETTER TO SENATE COMMITTEE

Says There Are Three Unfair Ways of Beating World Court and One Fair Way.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—More than 50 organizations that have been active in urging American participation in the World Court have notified Congress that they are opposed to Senator Lodge's recent proposal for a new world tribunal.

In a statement prepared for forwarding to members of the House and Senate today a committee representing the organizations said it wanted the United States to join the Permanent Court for International Justice, with the Hughes-Harding-Coolidge reservations. Former Justice John H. Clark, representing the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association; Dr. John H. Finley, of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. William H. P. Faunce, of the World Peace Foundation; Miss Ruth Morgan, of the National League of Women Voters; Mrs. Raymond Morgan, of the Women's War Court Committee; and James G. McDonald, of the Foreign Policy Committee, signed the statement.

"The introduction by Senator Lodge, May 8, of a resolution to create a new world court," the statement said, "throws into bold relief the fact that American opinion overwhelmingly demands the prompt adherence of our Government to the protocol of signature of the Permanent Court of International Justice on the conditions formulated by Secretary Hughes, vigorously championed by President Harding and approved by President Coolidge. The hearings on April 18 and May 1 before the subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations indisputably prove our people's support of the existing court."

"We submit that the Permanent Court of International Justice represents the logical development of an essentially American movement under way for a generation. It is built on the foundation of the Permanent Court of Arbitration established in 1899 and on the work of the two Hague Conferences. It is precisely this for which the United States was contending when the second Hague Conference met in 1907. The court is now firmly established. It has begun its work. It has functioned for more than two years. Forty-seven peoples of the world are giving it their cordial support. Whether the United States acts or not, the court will go on."

Letter to Committee Members. Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, signed by Charles H. Lummis, John W. Davis, Samuel Colcord, Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Adolph Lawrence, Henry A. Stimson, John G. Hibben, president of Princeton University, Charles W. Eliot, Joseph Walker of Massachusetts, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, Ernest D. Burton, president of the University of Chicago, and William Allen White, signed the statement.

"There are three unfair ways and possibly one fair way by which your committee may defeat the proposal made to it by President Harding, renewed in the message of President Coolidge and repeated in his recent address before the Newspaper Publishers' Association."

"Its defeat may be accomplished by refusal or neglect to bring it before the Senate. Or it may be defeated by reporting it out with reservations which can have no other result than to kill it by making impossible the Democratic Senate support necessary to the two-thirds majority required to ratify, or which, if the measure so reported could receive the required votes, would insure its rejection by the other nations adhering to the court."

"A simpler and easier way to defeat it would be to hold it back until so near the close of the Senate session that its passage could not be effected. The last method would be the most unfair and reprehensible of all."

"We retain our confidence in the President and rely upon him to insure that the proposal as made by his predecessor to the Senate and resubmitted by him have a fair hearing and vote in the Senate in time to make it effective if that be the will of two-thirds of the Senate members."

Pistols and Crime.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your issue of May 13, Judge F. Ferris suggests the destruction of the pistol as the only remedy against hold-ups and murders. The suggestion is not novel, and its only claim to consideration in this case is that it is put forward by a prominent personality. I can, however, not help thinking that this suggestion was made without due consideration, for Judge Ferris' own letter demonstrates the futility of attempting to carry it out; he says: "The gunman's reign will last so long as pistols are made and can be had," and again, "But to fully protect the people of one state requires the co-operation of all the states; in fact, of all the world."

Supposing the manufacture and sale of pistols, using this term to cover all kinds of one-hand guns, is prohibited not only in Missouri, but in the whole of the United States, what will be the result? Why, simply that all the thugs will be just as well armed as they are now and will have the whole country, including the police, at their mercy. There are plenty of thugs in this country, but the percentage is small, and it will be a very simple matter to make enough hand guns here or to smuggle enough of them into the country to keep these gentlemen well supplied. Any kind of an old gas pipe will answer the purpose should expert gunsmiths fail. Now, the hold-up man runs a certain amount of risk, for the innocent looking pedestrian may be carrying a revolver, the storekeeper may have one under his counter and the owner of the home may have a pistol handy; either of these prospective victims may be able and willing to use "this little shining devil." If Judge Ferris has his way the thug will have a clinch and the law-abiding citizen will have lost a little more of his self-respect.

What would become of this country if it was attempted to solve all difficulties on the lines of prohibition and suppression? Automobiles cause as many or more deaths than firearms; answer—prohibit the manufacture and sale of them. Many people drown—prohibit bathing and so forth. We have a Volstead act, and it is working wonders in so far as the bootleggers are concerned. Do we want any more like it?

I cannot see that anything will ever be achieved by prohibition of any kind. I firmly believe that the remedy in every case is education and regulation, and the more education the less need for regulation. Teach every child in the country obedience, self-control and respect for his parents and elders, make him understand that liberty is not license and that one may obey and yet be "free and brave" and many of our troubles will vanish. In addition, enforce the laws, make them stricter if necessary and see that the efforts of the police are not negated by the attitude of the Judge and that the Judge's ruling is not amended or nullified by the Governor.

Judge Ferris is correctly informed about the London policeman not carrying a pistol. No policeman does in England, Scotland or Wales and yet you can buy pistols by the carload. Years of perseverance in home education, be the household ever so humble, and years of the prompt enforcement of simple laws are responsible for these remarkable and gratifying conditions. Similar conditions exist in other European countries and have been brought about in the same way, education, regulation and law.

Judge Ferris seems to think that the pistol is the only worthwhile weapon which he disposes of the thing. It is a matter of common knowledge that in some European countries in which pistols can be had for the asking the thief prefers the knife. I, for one, would rather face a pistol than a knife, the chances of it plus with the former are greater. And that about the sandbag?

Instead of trying to abolish the pistol, would encourage its general use. The more citizens are familiar with the pistol, the more expert in its use, the better for the individuals concerned and for the country at large, particularly in case of a national emergency. Also the less incentive for a thug to take a chance on a hold-up or on entering a home. If policemen, mail clerks, payroll clerks and others in similar responsible positions are fine shots willing to use their weapons, the number of holdups and murders would dwindle remarkably. Still, police alone cannot put an end to an admittedly scandalous situation, it must have the prompt support of the courts. The trial of a suspect should be held within a few months of his apprehension. By that time he should be acquitted or condemned. If the latter, he should be on his way to the prison or to gallows and the court's sentence should not be open to modification except by the President of the United States.

VAL A. FRYN.

SETTLE THE COURTHOUSE SITE.

In another column will be found the full report of the situation with regard to the new courthouse site bill. The situation is discouraging. It shows that powerful influences, led by Mayor Kiel, are delaying action on the bill to determine the site, and that delay is dangerous to the plan of having the new courthouse located in the Memorial Plaza east of Twelfth street.

The committee of five selected by the Board of Aldermen to recommend the site voted four to one for the Twelfth street site, completing the proposed Memorial Plaza. The question was supposed to have been settled by this recommendation. It is in accord with the program submitted to the voters in the bond issue election. The people voted for the $4,000,000 bonds to acquire a site and build a new courthouse under the clear impression that the building was to be erected within the plaza, on the east side of Twelfth street. The building was located there in the maps printed for the information of the voters. The plaza with the new courthouse located on the east side was one of the principal arguments in favor of the bond issue. The people voted with that understanding.

An effort was made after the election by property owners and business interests near the old courthouse to have the site changed, but after the report of the committee the plaza site was regarded as accepted.

The administration was on record as in favor of the plaza site. The Mayor was in favor of it. The Public Service Board favored it. The majority of the Board of Aldermen favored it.

Then the business interests urging the downtown site gave a dinner to the leaders of the administration, and a change came over the spirit of the city hall. Wait was the watchword of the Mayor, and it echoed through the whole administration. The former supporters of the site say that their minds are unchanged, but there's no hurry. Wait—wait till after the election.

The bill was recommitted to the committee and the committee now has voted to hold a hearing tomorrow night.

There ought to be an overwhelming representation of the people in favor of the plaza site, as opposed to the special interests who want to change it. The question ought to be settled once for all. The committee should again recommend the plaza site, and the Board of Aldermen should pass the bill, in good faith to the people and as a matter of sound policy in carrying out the splendid plan for a civic center. Then the preparatory work for the building of the new courthouse, which will require much time, can begin at once.

HARRISON AS KEYNOTER.

The chief significance of the selection of Senator Pat Harrison for keynoter of the Democratic convention is in its foreshadowing of the lines on which the delegates will divide for the presidential nomination. Harrison is understood to have had the unqualified support of the backers of Al Smith while he is known to be friendly to McAdoo and agreeable to his supporters.

Will the nomination be decided on these lines and be given to a man agreeable to both sides but belonging to neither? Are McAdoo and Smith to be the most important names in the convention, the opposite poles between which, somewhere, a mean must be found?

The Democratic party has enough in common this year to save it from serious factionalism. As the arch Republican biter of the Senate Harrison is a fitting symbol of the Democrats' main chance.

GET THE CHILD DESTROYERS.

St. Louis is extraordinarily calm and apathetic under conditions that would have aroused every member of a small community into justifiable horror, anger and swift action.

Within a few months we have been shocked by brutal attacks on young girls and children, some resulting in murder and others in more or less serious injury. It may be said with truth that, unless the perpetrators of these crimes are brought to justice, no girl or woman is safe on the streets after dark, even when accompanied by an escort. One of the assaults was committed in a park by a man who took the girl from her escort, asserting falsely that he was a police officer. The Margulies assault and murder occurred only a few days after the attack upon 8-year-old Maxine Walters. The child, as a result of this atrocity, must spend weeks in the hospital, even if she has not been irreparably injured.

Degenerates guilty of these assaults feel safe against lynching in St. Louis. But if public apathy, police failure to catch them, and court inaction or worse fail to punish them as they deserve, these destroyers of children and young girls will laugh at the law and continue their attacks.

The public and the Police Department and courts must see to it that not one of those found guilty shall escape the utmost penalty. Laws that will stamp the city as a place where the honor and safety of its childhood and womanhood are little regarded.

TO ASIA BY AIR.

The American flyers are "over the hump" and across the Pacific. Observers on an American and a Japanese destroyer off Paramashiru Island must have experienced a thrill when they sighted one of the northern mist three winged objects carrying men from the shores of America. The first marvel is that the flyers, against the rigors of the Arctic, at one of the stormiest seasons of the year, were able to make the hop at all. The second marvel is the revived realization that the two continents—Asia, the cradle of the human race, and America, the new world—are, at their northern extremities, so close together. By going farther north the jump from mainland to mainland would have been a mere 65 or 70 miles.

The transpacific flight is significant of what can be done rather than what is likely to become a practice. Our aircraft are still more or less the creatures of the storm king. They cannot travel safely when deprived of their eyes by snow or fog. We must not be too impatient of the day when we shall see transpacific air service. When that day comes the route probably will not lie through Alaska, but the Hawaiian Islands.

The War Department was taking big risks in sending a fleet from the Alaskan peninsula at this time of year. That no lives have been lost and only one ship destroyed so far in the adventure is a grant of great good fortune. The daring of these men and of Maj. Martin and Sergt. Harvey, who met with mishap and were turned back, is the exalting theme of this great project of aerial circumnavigation of the globe.

TAX REDUCTION OR BONUS?

By a vote of 313 to 78—almost exactly four to one—the House of Representatives on Saturday passed the bonus bill over the veto of President Coolidge.

Of this bill the President wrote on Thursday: "Our country cannot afford it. The veterans as a whole do not want it. All our American principles are opposed to it. There is no moral justification for it."

Of a bonus bill different in detail but equally regrettable in principle President Harding wrote, Sept. 19, 1922:

"The pressing problem of the Government is that of diminishing our burdens rather than adding thereto. It is the problem of the world. War inflations and war expenditures have unbalanced budgets and added to indebtedness until the whole world is staggering under the load. It would wipe out everything thus far accomplished to add now this proposed burden (the bonus) and it would render the commitment to economy and saving so essential to our future welfare."

The warning of the dead Republican President, the pleading of the living President, who is the leader of his party, chosen in advance to head its ticket in another presidential campaign, were flouted in the bonus vote by 145 Republican Representatives, while only 57 Republicans voted to sustain the action of the President.

Of the 313 men of both parties who voted to override the veto many did so in the hope that enough Senators may be marshaled to the President's support to sustain him in his courageous action. And every one of the 313 who lays claim to common intelligence must know that enacting a bonus law now proposed is a fraud upon the public; that it will be calamitous in effect, and that to the soldiers themselves it is a gold brick.

And if the Senate fails to sustain the President the taxing public—directly or indirectly that is all public, including the veterans—is also gold-bricked. Tax reduction was promised. With the bonus passed and fresh exactions in sight it will be impossible. The country must go on as it is, hampered by war taxation. Both parties will face the presidential campaign with a lying pledge already forewarned smashing its way, ugly and uninvited, through the tightest platform that can be laid.

VETOES ARE NOT ENOUGH.

President Coolidge's veto of the Bureau pension bill was creditable to him and it is fortunate for the country that it was sustained. His veto of the bonus bill required even greater political courage, and there should be men in Congress with equal courage to back him up. He may veto the immigration bill with its irritating Japanese exclusion feature, incorporated at the bidding of the Pacific Coast.

But vetoes are not action. They are not enough. Without insulting Japan we need a few immigration laws; must have one after June 30 or chaos. Invalid and wounded soldiers deserve better treatment than they get under Forbes. We need tax reduction, and Congress may make it impossible by passing the bonus bill over the veto. In many ways we need leadership in affirmative solid legislation.

It is something to have in the White House a President who can veto. But Mr. Coolidge seems to have little idea of leading in constructive work his own party in Congress which by its position in the majority is charged with that responsibility. Congress has made scarcely a beginning on his program of legislation submitted in his annual message. So the vast organization of the Republican party drifts on toward the close of the Congress session with much more in its recent record to answer for before an indignant public than to look upon with pride or boast of in the presence of its critics.

TRICK LAW AND CRIME.

A bank robber, convicted and sentenced to 40 years in the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City, was released last week because a word was omitted from the indictment to which he pleaded guilty over three years ago. His lawyer waited to plead this technicality until the statute of limitations prevented re-indictment.

It is regrettable that public officials whose duties include the preparation of legal documents, and whose knowledge of law is such that they appreciate the susceptibility of such documents to technical attack, are negligent in matters so vital as criminal indictments. It is deplorable that lawyers, whose business it is to promote justice, are able, by taking advantage of petty technicalities, to secure the release from prison of confessed criminals, and continue to maintain their professional standing. It is almost unbelievable that the law which governs Missouri and the United States is so flexible that honest men, sworn to uphold justice and maintain the law, confess themselves impotent against the legal chicanery of murderers, robbers and their sinister lawyers.

Law is the definition of human relationships. It purposes to define acts that are criminal and to prescribe preventive and disciplinary measures. It is the mandate which forbids and the authority to punish.

Public safety demands that law processes be brought up to date. It calls for improvement which Chancellor Hadley of Washington University urged when he declared that the "administration of criminal law is a disgrace to civilization."

One thing, more needed perhaps than anything else, is a higher code of legal ethics, coupled with the common, garden variety of horse sense, applied to criminal cases that not only the law itself but the courts which administer it may be made shyster-proof.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: Last night at the agora we talked about Congress and the possibility of saving it from certain destruction by reprisal. Perhaps you young men would like to know what was said of this.

Glaucon: Truly.

Socrates: Very well. You know that for some time Congress has been terrorized by people holding the balance of political power.

It was first terrorized by the dionys. They visited reprisals at home upon any member of Congress who voted against them, and finally had Congress in such a state of terror that against its judgment and desire Congress voted for prohibition. Then the bonus came along. We have witnessed nothing short of a scandal in the matter of the bonus. Congress first passed it in the assurance that the President would veto it, and it has now passed it a second time with the same assurance. No such orgy of passing the buck has ever been witnessed in the history of Congress.

Polemarchus: But the blame does not rest upon Congress.

Socrates: Certainly not. I am getting to that. The farmers have Congress in the hold now. They want a subsidy for farming, and will probably get it. I am not attempting to say whether or not they should have it. I am discussing the plight of Congress. These minorities, each wielding a balance of power, have done more to impair the usefulness of Congress. They have actually made a session of it a menace.

Thrasymachus: Did anyone suggest what might be done about it?

Socrates: Yes. After we had talked a while some one was kind enough to suggest that Socrates be given the floor. I was very glad to speak, because I have an idea about all this.

Glaucon: And that?

Socrates: It is simple enough. I want to introduce the Australian ballot in Congress.

Polemarchus: You mean secret voting.

Socrates: Precisely.

Glaucon: By Jove, Socrates! That is a wonderful idea.

Thrasymachus: It speaks for itself.

Socrates: So everybody said. We had some little discussion about it, and then we all laughed in the realization that the thing is like rolling off a log.

Polemarchus: You are a wonder, Socrates.

Socrates: Tut-tut, Polemarchus. It is only what Congress, with its wits scattered as they are, is unable to do for itself.

MUSICAL CRITICISM IN MISSOURI.

(Sturgeon Leader.)

Someone in the party of rock slingers who bombarded the opera house, in which the Georgia Troubadours were sleeping Monday night, didn't get his elevation quite high enough and sent a brick through one of the Post Office windows. Well, bet that this bird is a poor ball player.

Sir: I drank liquor for 50 years before prohibition; since prohibition, very little. On a recent Sunday morning I went into a soft drink parlor, where I was a stranger, and called for a bottle of beverage. The gentlemanly clerk said: "We have beverage, home brew and some good booze. You do not look like a man who wanted beverage. Better try some of our good stuff." I did, with the following results:

Four shots of "good stuff" at 20c a throw, 80c; four days in City Hospital, at estimated cost to city, $12. I am so glad I am alive. Good-by, soft drink parlor. That's all.

P. S.—While at City Hospital was treated first. Received the best care and attention from doctors and nurses, day and night, from the time they took my clothes away from me when I went in until they gave them back to me when I came out. I would give you my name, but I know at least 1000 people in St. Louis, and if they knew this they would "ride" me the rest of my life.

Sir: Your answers Man says gentlemen always remove their hats when in elevators with ladies. The Man on the Upper Deck says he has seen some of those gentlemen (?) remove their hats, look solemn and keep on puffing a cigarette. He also adds that he has seen some of these same gentlemen (?) with women (young and old) packed around their knees in a street car calmly keep their seats and peruse their newspapers.

STAND-UP.

Sir: We have no objection whatever to the young union laborer in white clothing who passes each hour with a wheelbarrow load of building blocks for the improvements in the rear of the editorial offices. What we object to is that he should laugh each time when he sees us pounding this typewriter.

People who have tried it will tell you that one straw hat does not make a Spring, either.

THE MORNING GLORY.

BESIDE a country roadway, long ago, a sturdy little hen crept up a tree.

Around the rugged bark her tendrils twined.

Carelessly.

One summer night her slender buds appeared.

And peeped through leaflets wet with early dew;

She did not know her name—still half asleep.

Nor why she grew.

But when the great red sun rose from his bed,

And touched the lovely eye-lids with his dawn,

She awoke and found imprisoned in her heart

The Glory of the Morn!

ART FOR THE PEOPLE'S SAKE.

From the Ohio State Journal.

"BEAUTY has no relation to age, rarity, or price."

This statement on a card placed on a case in a museum attracted attention. Within the case were vases, jars, bowls, all very lovely both in color and design. Spectators admired and wondered. Later they were given the information that everything in the case had been purchased in department stores, and that not one piece had cost more than a dollar. The object lesson was of enormous value to housekeepers. The little exhibition was one of many interesting collections of a museum in Newark, N. J., a new sort of museum which aims to make itself useful as well as entertaining to the people of the city. Art for the people's sake is its motto; and its collection may be not only seen, but handled and enjoyed. Often private individuals, objects of rarity and great value are not sought, so much as those of curiosity, information or beauty. For the object is to acquaint people with art, not to ask them to stand in awe of it. There is a live idea behind this institution which takes away that tired feeling that comes to many of us when the word museum is mentioned.

HAPPY MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE.

From the Detroit News.

APPARENTLY one of those supposedly rare idylls in royal marriages is blossoming for the Crown Prince and Princess of Japan. A Tokyo newspaper announces in heavy type that the Crown Princess is to devote her leisure hours to silk culture, and to that end will establish a concubinary at Akasaka Imperial Palace and raise silk worms. The silk worm is not such a popular household pet here as it is in the Orient, being, so it is said, indifferent company compared with a sociable dog, and absolutely useless for raising. The Crown Princess, however, has an idea which lifts her proposal into a class by itself. In the cocoon she will place silk worms, the silk worms will produce silk. The Crown Princess will confiscate the silk and with it exclusive produce will knit socks for the Crown Prince. If that man isn't a happy husband he should be sentenced to tend the silk worms.

STAND UP FOR MASSACHUSETTS.

From the New York Evening World.

President Coolidge is the author of a volume of speeches which he calls "Stand Up for Massachusetts."

Massachusetts has the Senate leader. Massachusetts has the chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Relations in the Senate.

Massachusetts has the speakership of the House.

Massachusetts has the secretaryship of war.

And now the President has selected Butler of Massachusetts for the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

"Three Weeks," Elinor Glyn's Masterpiece Excessively Emotional.

MRS. ELINOR GLYN'S "Three Weeks" reduces to a vision running this week at the Grand Central Theater. It is well that this piece is not prolonged beyond the hour for human nature perhaps might stretch under the strain and begin to crack. This is by way of insinuating "Three Weeks" is somewhat rather excessively emotional.

From first to last it is crammed with those passionate passages which Mrs. Glyn, it may be recalled, put into her book a few years ago—the book that caused nations to gasp and well-nigh brought about the international prohibition of the writing, manufacture and sale of erotic novels.

The story is filmed to fit the motif. It is, of course, a tale of sudden falling in love and staying there to the finish. The natural human animal, possibly plus some little soul, is let loose to indulge natural human animal impulses. The picturization is done so that nobody possibly can mistake just exactly the meaning of each scene. The episodes are vividly portrayed.

A comparative newcomer is Allen Pringle, who plays the lovesick Queen. Miss Pringle is almost immeasurably superior, as an actress, to any of the silly little pretties who occupy so much time and space in the movie world and in the fancies of the undeveloped element. Moreover, she is undeniably beautiful. But it is her truthfulness that makes effective every scene in which she appears, which means the whole piece, with a few exceptions. Conrad Nagel as her young English lover is fairly effective. To complete the illusion, however, there should be a young Apollo for this part.

The scene where the King and his royal crowd hold revel is too bacchanalian to please the fastidious. There really is such a thing as going too far toward the sensual, right out in public like that.

Vamps Men to Destroy Them.

IF ALL men were like the "Men" at the Missouri Theater this week, where Pola Negri attempts to emphasize her contempt of the male animal, there wouldn't be any human race left after a few years to recall that there used to be such a breed. This is a Parisian piece, and Parisian plus.

Miss Negri takes the role of a provincial girl called Cleo, who looks foolish enough before she is enticed to Paris by a dandified, wretched whose job is that of procurer for a bogus Baron. This latter, portrayed by Edgar Norton, is Memphis multiplied in villainy several times.

Cleo, quite of course, becomes a famous dancer and waxer rich. She has such a hatred of men that she devotes her life to the task of setting their money and giving them the swift exit. There is a remarkable scene, the students' carnival, a masterpiece of which he has. Lewd incidents figure in it, however, which should be toned down somewhat if one takes the children to the show. On the whole, parents possibly might leave the children at home or send them to a safe refuge.

Leaving immorality quite aside, there is a distinct strain on unbecomingly in this piece. The plot turns on the infatuation for Cleo which a poor young bank clerk gives her money. Which he has stolen from his employer. This latter, excellently acted by the veteran Robert Edison, is supposed to "own" Cleo, having paid for her at auction a large sum. But when she discovers that she really loves Georges, a private investigator, he declines to prosecute the youth for his theft and gives way, saying "A great woman—a great woman!" This, it may be insinuated, is not calculated to help much, generally, and all-round crookedness going on. That is what is meant by the "unmorality" of the piece.

Betty Compson in "Miami."

"MIAMI" the much advertised picture with Betty Compson as the star, is having its initial screen production at the Kings Theater.

Betty Compson, as a leader of the "younger set"—and, incidentally, the faster set—in society, has a role which suits her perfectly. Also, incidentally, she wears some skimpy bathing suits that would hardly get by the authorities at the municipal swimming pools. The story is about society people who spend the winter down in Florida and Miami. Compson plays Joan Bruce, an up-to-the-minute flapper who finds it hard to hold on to her sweetheart and take part in the modern escapades which the younger set are supposed to indulge in almost constantly. There are wild parties, wild rides, wild gambling houses and some wild swimming but Joan Bruce comes through all without being more than singed by fire she has played with and the ending is satisfactory for her and for the audience.

The shots were taken at the Florida resort and there are almost no studio sets.

The Shooting of Dan McGrew.

THE Shooting of Dan McGrew, the current offering at the Delmonte Theater, is based on a poem by Robert Service, but the film version is such that it might well have been constructed to give Barbara LaMarr an opportunity to pose in stunning gowns and to give dances that are

As a story, the scenario never rises above the ordinary. At times the development is slow. In addition, the plot is so improbable and so overdrawn, that one cannot get very much excited in the fate of the principals.

The scenario opens with Barbara La Marr as a member of a stranded musical comedy company in a South Sea island. Her husband is a musician in the company, who, one is informed by the subtitle writer, has a dash of genius. And he and the star dancer have a child who later is to furnish the "human interest" in the story.

The star dancer goes to New York with a gambler. Dan McGrew, who places her in a bawdy house where she is free to enthrall the patrons by her dancing, and there she meets a rich Alaskan mine owner.

The story progresses through various conventional scenes such as the rescue of the dancer from a fire by the mine owner, a fight between McGrew and the husband of the actress, her journey to Alaska with the mine owner, her abduction from an Alaskan tent by McGrew, in a much overdrawn scene, a fight between McGrew and the mine owner in which the latter is stabbed to death, the dancer and social degradation of the dancer, and finally a reconciliation between the latter suddenly appears in the role of a strange miner, charms a barroom crowd with his music and shoots McGrew.

There are a few striking scenes—namely one of an Alaskan snowfield, and Miss La Marr uses her eyes expressively, especially when she chooses to give them a cold, calculating look.

Woodward Players Make Spirited Revival of Antique Classic, "Way Down East."

ALL was there, the old familiar hokum, in the revival of the antique classic, "Way Down East," by the Woodward Players yesterday at the Empress. We had the city youth recognizable at first sight as a betrayer of women because of his sandy brushed hair and riding clothes; the noble bumpkin, to be identified by his overalls and that of straw; the pure but unfortunate damsel, deceived by that ancient ruse of the mock marriage; the chief-lid without an honest name, and the cruel snowstorm of paper pellets which falls providentially so that the heroine may be driven forth into the night by the head of the old melodrama revealed surprisingly vitally under the sincere and spirited playing of the cast. Two large audiences relished it hugely, and the antique comedy points were welcomed as on their pristine day.

Laughter Lightly Reigns.
The spectators shouted when Squire Amasa Bartlett snorted like a porpoise while washing his face with suds. They shouted with glee when Seth Holcomb sat down in a pan of potatoes, or when he took a swig from his potent bottle of "Long Life Bitters." Merit was unconfined as that aboriginal, ontologist, Prof. Sterling, mistook a decoration on Martha Perkins' marvelous hat for a butterfly, and brought his net down with a swoop over the spinner's head. Even a quartet of berry-pickers which sang "The Old Oaken Bucket" was called back to oblige with "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Alexis Luce contrived to make a manly tender figure of that magnanimous yokel, David Bartlett, and Raymond Brown was capital in Denham Thompson's old role of the scriptural Squire Amasa. The villainous Lennox Sanderson, and what outcries of joy arose when the heroic David gave the wretch his just deserts in that battle in the maple sugar shed!

Helen Gilmore's Success.
Sylvia Farnese was a charming Kate Brewster, and Bobby Reed brought down the house with his long curls and awkward ways as the butterfly hunter, Alce Baker. Mrs. Louisa Bartlett, Specimens of the poor but more or less honest peasantry were contributed by Lambert Kaiman, Paul Hawley, William B. Kennedy, Frank McNeill, Hazel Whitmore, as Anna Moore, made a piteous exit into the storm, and contrived to be quite alive and dry the next morning, though she lost her cloak and wore a thin dress, and fragile shoes and hose.

The hit of the piece was achieved by Helen Gilmore, as the spinner of bitter tongue and malicious intentions. One wondered from what museum of antiquities she resurrected those amazing hats, cloaks and dresses.

Orpheum Ending Season
With Representative Bill
THIS week will close the Orpheum season. It is the vaudeville patrons' last chance to hear "You're Born," the Stuart Sisters in Frank Farnum's revue sing it as it should be sung by young women in short skirts and no stockings. They are institutions, these songs about Kentucky. What would a variety bill do without at least one?

After this week there will be no more opportunities until autumn to learn that one's mouth is one's filling station—not at the Orpheum, anyway. Bert Swor tells the audience that on the closing bill, What would a vaudeville bill without its blackface comedians?

No more for three months will the stage of the Orpheum elate to the syncope of clog dancers, nor blossom in the costumes of pretty dancing girls as it does this week with B. C. William & Co. in charge. They will come again, these revues, but probably in no better fettle than the ones which are closing the season here this week.

Farewell to the partner team, with the man dressed eccentrically and the girl sketchily. The particular team yesterday was made up of Rose Doner and Johnnie Berkes, putting over meaningless songs and weird steps to the impelling emphasis of the trap drums. Rose and Johnnie, too, are vaudeville institutions. There was Clemons Belling with his trick dogs and trick

MOTHER OF GOV. SMITH IS DEAD

He Falls in Effort to Reach Bed-side Before Death.

NEW YORK, May 19.—While Gov. Smith was speeding from Atlantic City, hopeful of reaching his bedside before the end came, his aged mother, Mrs. Catherine Mulvihill Smith, died last evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Glynn, 9 Middagh street, Brooklyn. She was in her seventy-third year.

Gov. Smith stepped from the Atlantic City Express in the Pennsylvania Station at 8:35 o'clock last night, two hours after his mother died. Dr. John H. Reb, the Smith family physician, said "Princess Chic" will be the most expensive, in the association's history, but no loss is expected unless there is protracted inclement weather. Seat sales exceeding last year's record of $25,718 are predicted.

Miss Rosamund Whiteside, daughter of Walker Whiteside, who has been engaged for a soubrette roles, arrived today for rehearsals of "Princess Chic." She appeared in St. Louis two years ago with De Wolf Hopper and Francis Willson in a revival of "Ermine."

The opera ticket office, in the lobby of the Arcade Building, was opened today for the general ticket sale. Advance season subscriptions, which closed Saturday, aggregate $95,000, which is more than the entire receipts of the first opera season.

105,000 Stars in Service Flag.
WASHINGTON, May 19.—A service flag with 105,000 stars, emblematic of the men and women pony and trick human assistants. Another institution which passed in review yesterday was Charles ("Chic") Sale, one of the originaltors of the one-man show. Sale was returning by popular demand. Well, there is always a demand for clever and humorous characterizations. Sale's country school exercises are good.

And what would a vaudeville bill do without a snappy closing act, with high hatted men stepping very fast and chatting faster and pretty high kickers working the orchestra to a frenzy. Pep to the last!

$40,075 PLEDGED TO INSURE

OPERA SEASON AGAINST LOSS

Advance Season Subscriptions Total $95,000—Opening Next Monday Night.

A guarantee fund of $40,075, to insure the 1934 Municipal Opera season against loss, has been subscribed by 174 firms and individuals. There has been a guarantee fund in each of the five preceding opera seasons, but only in 1919 were the guarantors called upon to absorb a deficit, $11,634, and in that instance the amounts advanced were repaid during subsequent seasons.

This summer's productions, which open next Monday with "Princess Chic," will be the most expensive, in the association's history, but no loss is expected unless there is protracted inclement weather. Seat sales exceeding last year's record of $25,718 are predicted.

Miss Rosamund Whiteside, daughter of Walker Whiteside, who has been engaged for a soubrette roles, arrived today for rehearsals of "Princess Chic." She appeared in St. Louis two years ago with De Wolf Hopper and Francis Will

The Men Who Serve You Whom You Do Not See

Ticket sellers, gatemen, conductors, dining car stewards, waiters and porters are about the only employees of a railroad with whom you ever come in contact; yet, in the operation of a great transportation system, almost every trade and profession is represented.

In order to maintain the high standard of safety, comfort and satisfactory freight and passenger service which has long distinguished the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, more than 52,000 men and women each day perform some special and definite task.

Approximately 300 executives direct the operation of various departments; 7,000 clerks handle the mass of detail, records, figures, etc.; 12,400 track workers guard the safety of passengers; 18,800 mechanics and helpers keep the equipment in repair; while 2,000 brakemen and flagmen, 5,000 dispatchers, agents, and others, 1,000 conductors, 8,400 engineers and firemen complete the list of active workers. To this number, must be added construction engineers, lawyers, doctors, agricultural agents and other specialists—all of whom contribute to the sum total of successful railroad operation.

Remember that one out of every fifteen bread winners in the Nation is employed in the transportation industry, and that these employees are good citizens—an asset to any community.

HERESY ISSUE IN CHURCH ASSEMBLY

Southern Presbyterians Get Complaint Against Teachings in Mission Seminary.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 19.—Four major propositions absorb the attention of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (Southern). The four propositions are:

Charges of unorthodox Biblical criticism or modernism in the foreign mission field.

Withdrawal from the Council of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches.

Eligibility of women to executive committees of the assembly.

The charges before the assembly concern teachers in the Nanking Seminary of China, a missionary school conducted by a number of Protestant churches.

Members of the North Kings Mission of China, a Presbyterian mission, have made charges against certain teachers in the seminary alleged by them to be contrary to the Presbyterian faith. Among the doctrinal irregularities charged are: The teachings that Moses was not the author of the first five books of the Old Testament; that the story of Creation in Genesis was not inspired; that there are two books of Isaiah instead of one; that the book of Daniel is history and not prophecy and was written by someone later than Daniel and after the events which it relates had transpired.

There is also a charge that the theory of organic evolution is taught in the seminary and that those teaching it hold the belief that Adam's body was not a special creation of God, but was evolved from lower animals.

50 ORGANIZATIONS OPPOSE COURT PLAN OF LODGE

ing the unmistakable voice of a great majority of the American people and the mandate of the party to the carrying out of whose wishes you have been entrusted, you will give that opportunity. That is the one fair way to defeat it if you are able. To withhold it would be a manifest betrayal of the people and of the administration whose head is the undoubted choice of your party as its candidate for the next presidential term.

"There can be no doubt as to the sentiment and will of the American people. That it is achieved in the court has been made plain by a wonderful unanimity of expression and appeal by great representative bodies with which you are not unfamiliar.

"The demand of the people is for action now. To drag it along until too near the time for the Senate to adjourn to permit bringing it to a vote will not meet their demand. They want it decided by this Senate and will know whom to hold responsible if it fails. There can be no valid reason for longer delay. Shall we not have it?"

"There is no more chance for the World Court plan of Senator Lodge to succeed than there was for Mr. Harding's Association of Nations, and for the same reason. The 47 nations in the court now established will not forsake it to join a new and unnecessary one which this plan would erect and the Senate would not ratify it. Senator Lodge has the intelligence to know this. The only possible achievement before it are confusion, delay and defeat of our joining in any World Court whatever. That would satisfy Mr. Lodge, but would infuriate the American people and disrupt the Republican party. Is that what he is after?"

Unusual Tales Of Adventure, Tragedy, Mystery, Humor From Real Life

By Robert Welles Ritchie.

AN INTERRUPTED JACKPOT.

THE first time the wireless S O-S signal of distress was flashed in any noteworthy instance occurred when the great transatlantic liner Republic, with many of New York's elite aboard, crashed into an Italian freighter in the fog off the southern shore of Long Island. All the metropolitan papers leaped to the then magic allure of a feeble spark stabbing through the air to tell the world the Republic was sinking. It was a prodigy worthy of the blackest headlines and the most soulful superlatives of the star writers.

The White Star liner Baltic was nearest to the scene of disaster, caught the distress call and turned from her course to grope through the fog on a rescue mission. Hour by hour came reports from her wireless on the progress of removing the Republic's passengers by small boat. Extra after extra from the presses of the evening papers screwed the pulse of Manhattan to a high pitch.

Then the Baltic turned her prow toward New York. I was one of a dozen newspaper men assigned to go out on a tug, hastily chartered, to meet the Baltic beyond the Narrows and board her when she slowed up to take on a pilot. The darling hope of the city editors was that in this way their faithful young men could garner every scrap of a vivid story before the Baltic put into Quarantine and so fill many columns in the morning sheets.

Our tug left the battery around 6 o'clock and headed down bay for the Narrows. The fog was like an interminable roll of cotton wool unfolding before the nose of our tug and rolling up behind her stern. The veteran skipper in the pilot house felt his way through the Narrows by catching the echo of his whistle back from the Staten Island Heights. So we made the lower bay and finally the ocean beyond.

At best there is something eerie about fog; it seems to lift the imaginative person out of the modern world of checks and balances against death, and hurl him back to the tree-tops with his arboreal ancestors. Where one hears a tiger's roar in a thunderstorm, the fine eye of imagination is attuned to the stealthy serpent's hiss in the muffling fog. But at sea, in the open lane of ships and aboard a 70-foot tug, fog is as much to be feared as fire.

While the master of the tug was groping to find the Ambrose lightship, we fellows started a poker game in the little cubby hole of a cabin, sitting around the table on up-ended boxes. I fancy each of us welcomed the diversion of the cards, no man caring to admit nervousness.

Dragging hour after dragging hour in that stuffy little hole with faint incandescents glinting through the tobacco smoke. Ever and again a signal bell down below would start or stop the slow-moving engines, as the trained eyes at the wheel zig-zagged across the ship lane. Our little craft was like a peccary stalking an elephant.

Midnight and no trace of the incoming Baltic. Now it was a matter of minutes whether or not our chase would be fruitless, for first editions already were "going down-stairs" back in Manhattan. Jack Slaght of the World had just opened a passed pot with a fine gesture of abandon, when the little cabin timbers vibrated to an unearthly bellow. We felt the tug heel away over even as we fell off our boxes. We scrambled to the deck.

There, high above our heads, was a single green eye in the peak of a monster which rushed down upon us, seemingly at lightning speed. A knife prow was turning up white water which actually splashed on our deck, as the tug veered off from the sleek black leviathan bearing down upon it.

Then sped past our eyes rank upon rank of beary lights, the yellow slots of decks high above our puny mashhead—all the panorama of death so narrowly missed. The Baltic, unheeding our frantic whistles, slipped into enveloping fog, Manhattan bound.

"Well," came the cheery voice of Jack Slaght, "remember, the pot's opened. Who's coming in?"

PASTOR ATTACKS SUNDAY GOLF

Sunday golf, as a diversion for church members, was attacked by the Rev. James L. Fowle, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, Delmar boulevard and Clara avenue, in a sermon yesterday. Most golfers, he said, are not poor persons, but are those who could play on week days, and he urged them to do so, and to give Sunday to religious activities.

Sunday picture shows and automobile touring for pleasure on Sunday were also discussed by the minister. He said that working hours are easier than they once were, and that one former excuse for Sunday amusement has thus been removed.

WOODS RESIGNS POST AT TOKIO; EXCLUSION FOE

American Ambassador's Decision, Friends Say, is Due to Health of His Wife's Mother.

OUTSPOKEN AGAINST JAPANESE BARRIER

Recently Addressed Meeting of Nipponese Leaders and Americans Assailing Action of Congress.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, May 19.—Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods, confirming the dispatch from Washington reporting his resignation, said it was due entirely to family reasons. The resignation was tendered three weeks ago. The Ambassador will sail from Yokohama for Seattle on the President McKinley on June 1.

Foreign Minister Matsui, when informed of the resignation of Ambassador Woods, said: "The Japanese people will deeply regret it. They will never forget the Ambassador's unselfish and efficient services for their welfare at the time of Japan's great disaster."

Viscount Makino, Minister of the House, said:

"It will be a great blow to us."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 19.—Cyrus E. Woods, American Ambassador to Japan, has asked to be relieved of his duty here. It was learned here today that he was not known when he would retire.

Ambassador Woods, who played a leading part in relief efforts after the Japanese earthquake, expressed his disapproval of the Asiatic exclusion provision of the new immigration bill, in an address at Tokyo several days ago, at a meeting attended by prominent leaders and prominent American residents.

His decision to resign, however, was attributed by friends here to the health of Mrs. Woods' mother, who was injured in the earthquake and was brought home by the Ambassador and his wife last November.

Sought to Quit Months Ago.
The desire of Ambassador Woods to relinquish his post here has been known for some time, but he has been wholly upon personal considerations and to have no connection with pending immigration legislation in this country.

Woods first expressed his wish to be relieved when he was in the United States some months ago, before the Japanese exclusion question came up in Congress. His resignation has not yet been formally submitted, but he expects to return to the United States in the near future and to be spared for the purpose of tendering it.

Mrs. Marchand's Condition Grave.
Recent dispatches from Tokyo have indicated that the health of the Ambassador's mother-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Marchand, has not improved and that her condition has become increasingly precarious. Woods desires to bring her back to the United States at the earliest possible moment.

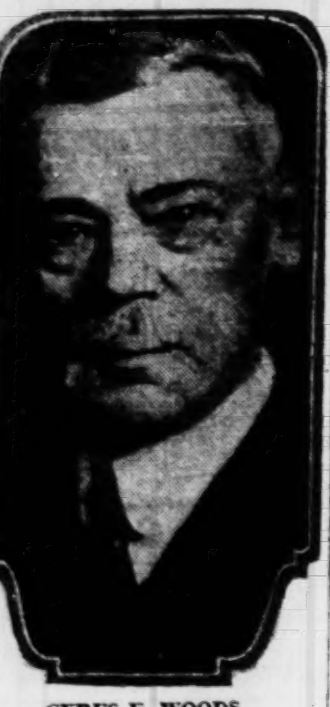

Until the immigration issue developed, it had been the purpose of the Washington administration to relieve the Ambassador, in accordance with his request, at an early date. It was felt, however, that the delicacy of the new situation made it unwise to make an immediate change. In consequence Woods' return has been delayed beyond the time originally fixed.

Woods served as the American Ambassador to Spain from June, 1929, until March, 1933, when he was transferred to Tokyo upon the resignation of Charles B. Warren, who subsequently served on the Mexican Claims Commission and, last March, accepted the appointment as Ambassador to that Government.

BERTRAND RUSSELL DENOUNCED
By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 19.—An attack upon Bertrand Russell, the English philosopher and pacifist, for alleged speeches before anti-Christian meetings in China, was made by Bishop Laurence J. Sheehy of Chicago yesterday in an address at the American Bible Society's anniversary meeting here. The meeting was held in conjunction with the Methodist Episcopal general conference.

"The youth movement in China includes a group which is assailing the Bible," said Bishop Sheehy, "and Bertrand Russell has lent his aid to this anti-Christian group by appearing and speaking at its meetings." Bishop Sheehy declared that the Chinese youth movement was spreading propaganda against the Bible, and that even in the writings of classic Chinese authors the Bible was termed "The Christian's filthy classic."

BABY IN MOTHER'S ARMS FATALLY HURT

Auto Driver Held After Running Down Family Group at Creve Coeur.

Injuries suffered when her mother, who was carrying her, was knocked down by an automobile at Creve Coeur, Saturday night resulted in the death yesterday of Lorraine Niedringhaus, 4-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niedringhaus of Creve Coeur.

Mr. and Mrs. Niedringhaus, each carrying one of their children, and accompanied by their three older children, were walking east along Olive Street road through the town, when the parents were struck from behind by the eastbound automobile of C. A. Rictor, 27, of St. John's Station.

Both were thrown to the ground and severely shaken up. The baby, examined by a physician who was summoned, appeared to be uninjured, but later Dr. Robert Denny was called and remained with the child all night in an effort to save its life. Its chest and back were injured and its skull is believed to have been fractured.

Rictor, who stopped his machine at once, said the headlights of an approaching car blinded him so that he did not see the group. He called at the Niedringhaus home to inquire about the baby yesterday morning a short time after it died and was placed under arrest by Sheriff Willmann, who was there investigating the accident.

Niedringhaus said that while automobiles had been passing, he did not believe another machine was near at the time of the accident. Both the Niedringhaus family and Rictor were returning from an entertainment at the Creve Coeur Farmers' Club.

CHURCH CONDEMNS PROHIBITION
South African Synod Says 'Wine Is Gift of God.'
By the Associated Press.
CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 19.—Prohibition is condemned as the wrong method for combating drunkenness by the Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church of South Africa, which holds that "wine is a gift of God which no one should despise."

The synod says: "The scriptures allow the individual to abstain, as is seen in the case of the Rechabites and Romans XIV and First Corinthians VIII, but never mention prohibition as we now see it."

Insofar as local opinion aims at prohibition, the synod is against it, but declares that it does not fall within the scope of an ecclesiastical meeting to give any further opinion on a measure of a political character.

BERTRAND RUSSELL DENOUNCED
By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 19.—An attack upon Bertrand Russell, the English philosopher and pacifist, for alleged speeches before anti-Christian meetings in China, was made by Bishop Laurence J. Sheehy of Chicago yesterday in an address at the American Bible Society's anniversary meeting here. The meeting was held in conjunction with the Methodist Episcopal general conference.

"The youth movement in China includes a group which is assailing the Bible," said Bishop Sheehy, "and Bertrand Russell has lent his aid to this anti-Christian group by appearing and speaking at its meetings." VIEWS OF GERMAN PRESS ON EXPERTS' GOLD BASIS PLAN

"What Would Happen if Europe Suddenly Discarded Dollar?" Asks Vossische Zeitung.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, May 19.—Is the United States becoming alarmed over the danger of suffocation in her post-war accumulation of the world's gold, or her prospective ability to mobilize her reserve of minted bullion? What would happen if Europe suddenly concluded to discard the gold standard entirely and left the United States to its isolated contemplation of her idle gold?

Curiosity in this direction has been provoked by a recent pronouncement of the Federal Reserve Bank's directorate in connection with the fixing of the dollar as the official unit of exchange for the new German bank of emission.

The German financial writers observe that the future historian of post-war international finance will make due record of the American demand, not because it reflects something new or unexpected, but because this belated record in plain-spoken American business diction a fact long known, but insufficiently appreciated.

Transition of Financial Power.
These dryly uttered words, says Germania, the official organ of the Clerical party, "simply stress the transition of financial power from one continent to another; in short, the abdication of Europe, which must be squarely faced."

The paper confesses that Europe no longer sets the financial pace for the world and asserts that the Bank of England, once the incarnation of stability and the world's money center, is no longer its former self.

"The Anglo-Saxons still hold the whip hand," continues Germania, "but they are not European Anglo-Saxons; they are the sons of the former English colony, who now hold half the world's minted gold."

Europe, in the opinion of Germania, has no other choice than to submit to being financed and "ruled" by the sons of the empire which now has become a world empire and which is the real victor of the World War.

The prospect of a battle between the dollar and the English pound suggests to the Vossische Zeitung that such a controversy would not be as successful as it is being made. It has credit in the United States and Mr. Nogin told me that it would spend there this year more than the $50,000,000 he estimated when he was in Washington.

All Russia is sadly in need of clothes and the market for textiles is good. When I went with Mr. Nogin to the wholesale shop of the Textile Syndicate the doors were closed because there were inside the building all the buyers from different parts of the country that were coming to the annual textile manufacturing all kinds of textiles, wools, cottons, linens, silks of all grades and qualities.

Abroad With the Daily-Mirror-of- Washington Man

A Report Day by Day of His Observations on a Tour of Europe.

By Clinton W. Gilbert.

THE (Copyright 1934.)
As before the soviet leaders, then, is to make Russia a modern industrial country, organized on the basis of state socialism and yet capable of producing a somewhat higher general average of well-being and happiness than exists in a capitalist society. Unless the Soviet Government succeeds as a producing organization, there will be no hope of the world revolution. More than that, the Russian revolution itself will be slowly compromised out of existence. Now it is too soon to judge whether the Russian Government is succeeding as a master of industry or not. It loses a good deal of money upon its industrial production, but it has not yet taken them over when they are utterly demoralized. It lacks experience. Perhaps the man has not yet been found who can run them. Moreover, some of these industries must, from the nature of the case, lose money for many years to come.

Among the Russian industries there are, of course, the railroads. Our own railroads, as a whole and over a period of recent years, have not been extremely profitable. But suppose our railroads had not been built for business reasons, but for military purposes. Suppose they ran through sparsely settled country, where people made their own clothes and raised their own food and bought nothing from the few big cities that existed. The railroads look to me as if they would lose as much for years as the Soviet Government might make out of its other industries. People say "the trouble with Russia is lack of transportation." The trouble with Russia is the lack of any basis for transportation. The whole consuming habits of the population will have to be changed. There can be no any adequate transportation system. Freight moves faster in Russia than anywhere else in the world. It is because there is so little of it to move. Passenger travel does not put anywhere near as much of it to the test as the hauling of peasants at extremely low rates. For the trip from Riga to Moscow, 24 hours, the Government charges, first-class, $12. Third class, I suppose, is something like half that.

The textile industry, in charge of Victor P. Nogin, whom I had met in Washington, is apparently successful and is said to be making money. It has credit in the United States and Mr. Nogin told me that it would spend there this year more than the $50,000,000 he estimated when he was in Washington.

REPORTS THEFT OF JEWELRY WORTH $9400

Woman Guest at Melbourne Also Says $100 Was Taken From Her Trunk.

Mrs. Henry Clay Hunter, residing at the Melbourne Hotel, reported that in her absence from her suite last evening it had been entered, her wardrobe trunk broken open and jewelry valued at $9400 and $100 in cash stolen from it.

It appeared that a duplicate or skeleton key had been used to enter the room. A "jimmy" used on the trunk was found on the floor. Mrs. Hunter said she was away between 7:30 p. m. and 12:45 a. m. She described and valued the jewelry as follows: Man's two-stone diamond ring, $5000; platinum stickpin, $1000; bar pin, $1500; two-diamond drop pendant, $1200; 32-diamond ring, $400.

At the hotel today Mrs. Hunter declined to talk with reporters. It was said that she and her husband, a Southeast Missouri banker and real estate man, who is away at present, had lived there for some time, but that the management was unaware she kept valuables in her room. The hotel has a safe for guests' valuables.

WOMAN GRABS WATCH CHAIN FROM BURGLAR IN ROBBERY
Mrs. Maude Richtie Fights Invader When He Seizes Her by Throat in Bedroom.

An initial watch chain which Mrs. Maude Richtie of 2612 Bellvue avenue, tore from the vest of a burglar who invaded her bedroom at 2:30 a. m. today, is being used by the police in an effort to find the thief. Mrs. Richtie, sleeping with her 9-year-old daughter, was awakened by the burglar walking in the room.

She screamed and the intruder strode to the bed and seized her by the throat. She struggled and screamed again, when the man ran to a window and jumped out. He stole nothing, and the watch-chain, engraved with three initials, was turned over to the police.

Mrs. Mary Bolger of 422 North Market street awoke at 3 a. m. to find a man slipping his hand under her pillow. She called to her husband, George Bolger, sleeping beside her, and the burglar fled to a window and jumped out. Bolger's watch and cravenet raincoat were missing.

Three other burglaries were reported late yesterday. At the home of Leon Cool, 1227 Bayard avenue, jewelry worth $225 was taken, at the home of George Blach, 6602 Oakland avenue, jewelry worth $575 was taken and at the home of Grover Lowman, 3912 North Ellsworth street, jewelry worth $200.

BEAUTY THE THEME OF FLOWER SERMON

The Rev. Dr. Sedgwick of New York Heard at Christ Church Cathedral.

Beauty in nature, art and architecture was described as the common possession of all, in the annual flower sermon, preached in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Theodore Sedgwick, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, New York. The flower sermon, by a visiting preacher of distinction, is preached at this time every year, through a provision made in the will of Henry Shaw, founder and donor of the Missouri Botanical Garden.

"In beauty we find much of the religion of life," Dr. Sedgwick said. "If beauty is to be found only in the more precious things of art, and the priceless things in man's possession, it would be limited to the few favored to see these things. If it had to be culled from the wealth of literature, or to be discovered in the characters of some saintly lives, or to be seen for a time in the passing fashions that come and go, it would give understanding and joy to those who by education or by special training, or at certain periods could absorb its value."

Beauty in Common Things.
"But beauty is something that comes from God, and is to be found wherever His life and power are recognized. Know God, and love God, and you will find beauty everywhere: the lives of the poor man, the rich man, the sick man, the well man, of the average man or woman, can be made happier and more noble by looking for and discovering beauty in common things."

"Beauty is to be found in your streets, in your buildings, in your parks and squares and in your houses. It is only as we look for it that we find it. The artist, the engineer, the architect have contributed to create the mass of buildings about you, and they are part of the common everyday life of millions, who are working to earn their daily bread. Do they know in those offices and lofts, which are often dreary, that they are surrounded by a beauty which lifts the heart of man? Do we know that, although our lives are often dull and monotonous, we are surrounded by a beauty which, if we look for it, will speak to the soul with many voices, appealing to the best that is in us?"

Beauty in Churches.
"Go into any of the churches which stand with doors open ready to receive you at any hour of the day, and you will find beauty in arch and window. There is an altar which makes common things sacred, and here in this Cathedral there is a reared which is celebrated throughout the country for its beauty and grandeur. Its carving of stone will make you realize that the place where we meet with God is adorned with man's most sacred art. It was at the gate of the temple called 'Beautiful' that the lame man sat and asked alms from those who came to look at it. Peter said to him: 'Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.'"

"The door of anyone of our churches is the Gate Beautiful. If we enter sick or weary, worried or sad, and look up to Him who said 'Come unto me and I will give you rest,' we shall rise up and walk with firmer tread: we shall be renewed in spirit, and in His health we shall find health."

Brass Mail-Boxes
Rust makes short shrift of the familiar green-painted steel letter-boxes, exposed as they are to all kinds of weather.

Steel boxes must be painted almost yearly. In some localities, their average life is but three years. The Brass mail-boxes now coming into use will never rust. And they require no paint.

Alloys of upkeep and removal means that the slightly higher first cost of Brass is saved many times over.

The economy of Brass, its quiet beauty and character, make it the logical metal for some 35,000 different objects such as hardware, drawer pulls, castings, lighting fixtures, etc.

When you buy hardware, a trunk, furniture with metal fittings, curtain rods (any metal object among the 35,000) insist on getting real Brass, and do not be misled by a thin brass-plating that temporarily hides a rusty metal underneath.

FRANCE NEEDS FOREIGN POLICY, SAYS HERRIOT Radical Leader Declares Nation Cannot Reduce Armament Until European Relations Are Settled.
CALLS AMERICA POLITICAL POLE
Thinks Germany Could Join in International Understanding and Would Encourage Democracy There.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, May 19.—Edouard Herriot, to whom all indications point as the next Premier, is becoming more expansive in his declarations, now leaving the realm of generalities.

"Foreign policy is the essential thing," he is quoted as saying to the foreign editor of La Matin. "There can be no question of reducing our military financial burden until France has been put at her ease in relation to Europe."

There was no reason, he said, why the recovery of the French debts could not be associated with the restoration of Europe and peace of the world. He remarked that America is "a people prodigious in its industry and one of the political poles of the universe, but it is no less great by reason of its idealism and its generosity. It knows how to touch its heart."

Would Include Germany.
He even thought that Germany could be brought within the scope of a policy of international understanding. The democratic elements there at present, he thinks, are stifled by a sinister wave of nationalism and should be supported because they constitute one of the best guarantees for peace.

M. Herriot's foreign policy, "efficiency collaboration among the great Powers for the settlement of my problems," with the promise to keep within the bounds of good sense and reason, is criticized as clever and it is noted that the radical leader, who is considered by reason of his extended visit to Russia, has been well informed as to that subject, avoided answering the question of Soviet recognition, saying, "We want to be very reasonable."

However, M. Herriot did add: "We will be of good faith, but we will demand equal good faith from others."

Opposition Is Skeptical.
The man who is likely to be the future Premier, it would appear, intends to go slow. Nevertheless, opposition critics are skeptical because the vagueness of his utterances on external and internal policy, notably his side stepping the question of whether he would demand the repeal of the 20 per cent taxation, which caused the downfall of M. Poincare.

The only answer to this M. Herriot vouchsafed was "the financial policy forms part of the foreign policy we wish to follow, and the latter ought to be fixed first."

Setting one ironic commentator to mark that France's tax burden thus will be reduced only after Germany has finally paid.

M. Herriot is still noncommittal as to possible cabinet selections, because he does not know whether the Socialists present reluctance to accept portfolios will be maintained. He expects to give a mid-week meeting in Paris as president of the radicals, at which much ground work will be laid.

Macdonald Will Not Confer With Poincare on Europe.
Herriot, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

By JOHN H. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, May 19.—Premier MacDonald, despite renewed overtures from Premier Poincare, will disregard the advice of powerful officials of the Foreign Office here and engage in no negotiations regarding reparations or European affairs with the French Premier.

This means no further steps will be taken here regarding the Dawes report until the new French Government commences its function.

MacDonald's decision was made yesterday when "representations were made to him on behalf of important French Socialists who probably will be included in the next French Ministry. They definitely asked MacDonald not to carry matters further with Poincare."

The Prime Minister had been in doubt as to the course he should take. He did not want to waste time and was being pressed by the Foreign Office experts to take action.

His experts told him Poincare would be glad to deprive him of the credit for the new policies by making important concessions now.

It was advisable for the British to obtain them, the experts added, because Poincare would thus be deprived of a chance to criticize the new Government for weakness.

ILLINOIS FARMER-LABOR CONVENTION IS POSTPONED Conference of Third Party-La Follette for President Club Is Called Off.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, May 19.—The State nominating convention of the Farmer-Labor party of Illinois, and the Third Party-La Follette for President Club of Illinois conference, to have been held concurrently in Springfield, May 24 and 25, have been postponed. It was announced today by Gifford Ernest, secretary.

The postponement was taken at the request of various Progressive groups which asked more time to perfect their plans, Ernest said.

Much confusion has arisen over three groups called "Farmer-Labor" in Illinois. One of these groups, the Illinois branch of the National Farmer-Labor party, in the interest of removing factionalism, stepped out of the field yesterday, it was announced by John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and head of the Illinois branch. The third group, headed by Duncan McDonald and others, changed their name at Peoria to the Labor Party of Illinois.

became Premier. Prime Minister Baldwin was about to sell the Government's holdings in the Anglo-Persian Oil Co.

MacDonald wrote he and the Labor party were opposed to such a sale and, in view of their imminent accession to office, asked Baldwin not to make the sale. Baldwin at once agreed.

MacDonald yesterday pointed out to his colleagues that the same situation existed in France. The new union objected to negotiations and MacDonald believes he ought to meet their wishes.

HADLEY LAYS STRESS ON STUDY OF HISTORY
Chancellor Speaks at Laying of Corner Stone of New Campus Building.

Added emphasis to the study of history and the social sciences was the desire expressed by Chancellor of Washington University in an address this afternoon at the ceremony of cornerstone laying of Newton Richards Wilson Hall, the new building on the campus for the department of geology and geography.

The program was held in January Hall because of inclement weather, but the stone was laid afterwards. The building is the $275,000 gift of Wilson's widow, who resided in Brentmoor, Wilson, an engineer, was graduated from the university in 1879.

The chancellor, in his address, laid emphasis on value of geology, but dwelt at length on his ideal of making Washington University the typically American university. In this connection he discussed the desirability of a broader course of study.

Remarks on History.
"History," he said, "should be taught not as something consisting of dates of battles and the chronicle of events, but it should give an interpretation of the meaning of the different periods of our national life, including the consideration of the dominating social, political and economic influences that have controlled their development. The course of instruction in Government should not only teach the fundamental principles of our constitutional system and representative democracy, but it should also impress upon the minds of the students the duties and responsibilities of the individual citizen, to which he must respond if we are to realize the hopes and the ideals of a self-governing people."

"Aside from such intellectual development as may be incident to university education, the graduates of our universities are usually no better qualified for the duties of citizenship than when they entered the university. This is evidenced in the comparatively small number of university graduates whom we meet in politics."

To train the students in the duties of citizenship in a work that Washington University owes the nation and the State no less than does a state institution, and by such a service we cannot only give significance to our name, but also give warrant to our claim to distinction as the university that can best be regarded as typically American, typically national in its environments, its character, its educational methods and requirements. We should become in fact Washington's university, and strive to render to the country in the work of education and training for citizenship something of the same distinguished service that he gave to the country both in peace and war.

"Cannot Be Sectional."
"Manifestly such a university cannot be sectional in its interests or in its location; clearly the typical American university must be found in the Mississippi Valley, for there is the real heart of the nation. Here is to be found the nearest approximation to what we know is the typical American life and ideals. Here also must be worked out our great national problems and our great national problems are the problems of civilization."

The Chancellor said that Washington University has taken a step toward giving well-balanced instruction in "all departments and subjects of human knowledge" by prescribing courses of study for freshmen and sophomores, saying to them: "You must study your country's language, your country's history and your country's Government. You must also study a natural science, mathematics and a foreign or an ancient language."

Making Washington a typical national university requires co-operation of the alumni and of all St. Louisans, the speaker said.

William K. Bixby, first vice-president of the university corporation, presided. Other speakers were Edward Flad, new member of the Mississippi River Commission; William Kelly, president of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and Prof. Walter E. McCourt of the geology department. Mrs. Wilson laid the cornerstone. Invocation and benediction were said by the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson.

Good news for you. You have always been "intending" to lay money away. Somehow you never got started.

Well, here is an easy start. Perhaps you have arrived at the conclusion that thousands of other St. Louisans have—that your $100, when you got it, would go into Cahokia Preferred Stock. You have recognized its qualities of safety and you want a safe place for whatever money you do save.

You do not need $100 to become a partner in Cahokia.

Only $11

That will make the first payment under the Union Electric liberal time payment plan. Then nine other payments of $10 each and presto! you have arrived as a saver before you realized it. The extra dollar with the first payment is to cover the cost of registration.

The best way to become a saver is to assume an obligation which you must meet regularly. It is a time-proved prescription. Send in your $11 and promise to pay $10 a month for those nine months. We won't let you forget it.

At any rate, ask for the booklet which tells why Cahokia 6% is super safe for savings. Or ask any Union Electric shareholder.

SIR GALAHAD III DEFEATS EPINARD IN MATCH RACE AT PARIS

O'Neill and Haynes, Yankee Jockeys, Pilot Rivals in French Turf Championship

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 19.—Sir Galahad III, winner of the Lincolnshire handicap, defeated Epinard, crack French four-year-old, and last year's three-year-old champion, in their match race at St. Cloud today.

Pierre Wertheimer, former champion was the overwhelming favorite at 5 to 3 and was picked by 35 racing experts out of 46 publishing selections for the day's races, only five giving Capt. Cohn's horse a possible chance.

French Horses Coming to U. S. Not in years has such interest been shown in a horse race in this country as was displayed today due to the class of the entrants and the conditions and the possibility of the outcome having a decided bearing on American racing this fall.

Pierre Wertheimer, the owner of Epinard, is a wealthy manufacturer of perfume who takes his recreation on the turf and, it may be said, in passing, is a sportsman. Epinard has been engaged to run a series of races, two in New York and one at Latonia, Ky. This fall against the best that America has to offer for prizes that amount in France to a considerable fortune.

When the match was made there was some dissatisfaction in racing circles over here and in spite of the remarkable record last season some feared Epinard might not be the best horse had to offer for such a race.

Matters came to a climax a few weeks ago when Wertheimer sought out Capt. Jefferson Davis Cohn, the owner of Sir Galahad, and offered to run his horse against Sir Galahad in a match at 1,000 meters for a private sweepstakes. Epinard to carry 120 pounds to Sir Galahad's 115. Wertheimer at the time said:

Norton to Lead Ferris Team in Interclub Event

Local Tennis Competition for Werner Cup to Be Started Saturday.

By Davison O'bear.

Nearly all of the leading tennis players in the city will participate in the approaching interclub tournament for the Werner Trophy recently presented by Joseph Werner, local star and captain of the Princeton University tennis team in 1921. The first matches are scheduled to be played Saturday afternoon.

The leading division of private clubs will consist of Triple A, Forest Hills, St. Louis Country Club and the Forest Hills Tennis Club. Another division of smaller clubs will be formed if enough teams are entered. The Municipal Tennis Association will also have a division in the play.

The Triple A Club will be led by Wray Brown, Missouri Valley champion. Other members of the team probably will be Arthur Rapp, Woodward, Brown, Harold Hess and the remaining players in the club's first 10 ranking. The Hermann may also play on the team.

Section With Ferris Club. Forest Hills will have Karl Kamm as leading singles player. Fred O. Jostes, Elmer Schwarz and Walter Finger will form the nucleus for the remainder of the team. Gerald Donaldson, former New York and Canadian junior champion, may also play for Forest Hills.

Brian I. C. Norton, international star, now a resident of St. Louis, is expected to head the team of the Ferris Tennis Club. This team will probably consist of a number of junior champions.

The St. Louis Country Club will be represented by a well balanced team which includes several veterans. Joe Werner will play first singles, while Henry Cushman, 20, an Shelby and Willard Bartlett are candidates for the other single places. The veterans, Drumm, Jones and Rollie Hoerr, have promised to play in the doubles.

THE BROWNS BELIEVE THEIR WINNING STREAK IS MORE THAN A "SPURT"

Defeat of Senators Gives Sisler's Men a Record of 13 Victories in 16 Games

"Board of Strategy" Urges Players to Maintain Vigorous Drive Against Washington and Philadelphia—Shocker Wins His Third Game, 6 to 3.

By J. Roy Stockton, Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—With a record of seven victories and two defeats on the trip thus far and with 13 games won out of the 16 played, the Browns are convinced that this is not a spurt, but a true indication of the approximate speed at which the club ought to travel all season. The men of George Sisler have played every club in the league now, with the exception of the Athletics, and they have yet to see a team to which they will concede a better chance of winning the pennant.

The only trouble is that we're the only club that can give the Yankees a battle," is the way the Browns sized up the situation last night, as they reviewed the record of their trip thus far and speculated on the immediate prospects.

"New York can batter its way to victory, usually to a clean sweep of a series, over virtually every other team in the league. Cleveland will be lucky to win a game from the Yanks. Detroit's pitchers are not in shape to give New York much trouble. That means we'll have to establish a record for games won this year if we are to beat out the Yanks."

That certainly is not underrating the most feared rivals. And the Browns do not feel that they themselves are overconfident. "Don't Relax Now."

Sisler, Austin, Chet Thomas and Jim Evans, who approximate a board of strategy, have been harping for a week on the danger of the team's relaxing after leaving the ballcock of the hated and requested Yankees, for the ball yard of the Senators and Athletics. "Fight every inch of the way. It will take all you have to beat the Senators. The Athletics, who are so hard to start winning, will make the rest against you, if you're not careful." This has been the keynote of the campaign against overconfidence waged by the board.

There was a fine illustration of the wisdom of not underrating the enemy yesterday afternoon. The Browns might have been excused if they had gone into the first game of the Washington series slightly overconfident. Urban Shocker, the ace of the Browns' staff, on past words, who beat the Yanks to a frazzle last Wednesday, was pitched against a Mr. Marberry, a right-hander from Little Rock. Surely this did not look like much of a contest to set before the Sunday crowd.

But the Browns needed every break they got to beat the Senators and the same Mr. Marberry, Shocker's brilliant pitching notwithstanding. In fact, had the Senators' fielding been as brilliant as the recruit's work, Shocker would have had to accept defeat. And so the board of strategy had

Of the 14 who started, only six finished, some dropping out as early as the second lap, unable to stand the gruelling riding. Boulicault rode an easy race, averaging 17 1/2 miles an hour over the course. His fastest lap was completed in 35 minutes 30 seconds. He and Kraus will be sent by the St. Louis Cycling Club to the finals in New York, June 1-3. This race will determine who shall represent the United States in the Olympic bicycle races.

GOLFER DEFEATS BALL PLAYER IN NOVEL MATCH

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 19.—A novel match between a baseball player and a golfer was played at the Green Valley Country Club here Saturday. J. P. Simmons, the golfer, used his golf clubs, while G. H. Ackerman, baseball player, was permitted to throw a baseball into the air and bat it from the tee and through to the greens. On the greens Ackerman had to make the regulation putts, and he practically held his own. Ackerman got some good wallops, but Simmons outdistanced him and won by a comfortable margin.

Gene Robertson On Hitting Streak

Browns' Third Baseman Batting Close to .400—Wild on Bases.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, May 19.—Gene Robertson's hitting has attracted attention all over the circuit. He had a .336 average in the last figures published. But the Browns are considering an anchor for his use after he reaches a base. Twice in the New York series he was caught off second base in the middle of Brownie rallies. The first time was in the opening game of the series in an inning which produced five runs. Then in the last game he was nipped off second with one out and Tobin on third. Yesterday he was caught flat-footed off first, only to have Harris miss the ball. A kind scorekeeper gave Robertson a stolen base when he should have had a shot in the arm.

Black Gold's Dam 'Cleaned' Up In Canada; Holds Track Record

Won at 20 to 1 Her First Start at Windsor, When Owner Went North for His Health—Set Six Furlong Mark at New Orleans, Covering Distance in 1:11.

TULSA, Ok., May 19.—A romance of "brush track" racing lay behind the brilliant victory in the fiftieth Kentucky Derby Saturday of Black Gold, the gallant colt that brought racing glory to the West and to his owner, Mrs. R. M. Hoots of Tulsa, the second woman to send a Derby winner to the post.

It was the old "brush tracks" of Oklahoma that brought the Hoots family into the racing game. The illness of Mrs. Hoots' late husband, Al Hoots, some 15 years ago, started them to the races here originally.

Mrs. Hoots, a daughter of Mrs. Jane Appleby of Tulsa, known as the "Cattle Queen of Oklahoma," and a quarter blood Osage Indian, always has been wealthy. She and her husband were able to indulge their fancy for good horses as a diversion, when illness overtook Mr. Hoots.

It was back in 1910 or 1911 that Al Hoots bought the swift mother of Black Gold, U-See-It, from John Riddle during a race meeting at the old Fair Grounds half mile course in Tulsa. Out here in the "brushes," U-See-It was invincible in the half mile and five furlongs dashes. Hoots raced her in Tulsa, Oklahoma City and Muskogee for two or three years and she gained a great local following.

U-See-It Taken to Canada. This might have been the extent of the Hoots family's racing glory but for the fact that Mr. Hoots was advised that the Canadian climate might help him and so in the summer of 1913 to Canada they went.—Mr. and Mrs. Hoots and U-See-It.

Lots of people thought Hoots was foolish for taking the 8-year-old "brush" mare along to the big tracks; but a few of U-See-It's admirers believed in her on any track. She was entered at Windsor in a five-eighths mile sprint against some of the best selling players in Canada and breezed in ahead at 20 to 1 on her first out.

Black Gold's Jockey Receives $10,000 Fee For Fine Derby Effort

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 19.—RS. R. M. HOOTS, owner of Black Gold, the Kentucky Derby winner of Saturday, is not centered on racing. She was requested in the will of her late husband to raise the progeny of Uacelt, a mare he loved. She is carrying out his wishes. Sentiment plays a big part in her racing.

She is generous too. After the finish J. D. Mooney, who rode such a good race, was personally thanked and congratulated. Also he received $10,000 as his riding fee. Mooney's great ride had much to do with Black Gold's victory.

Most of the eastern horses were shipped to Belmont park this morning, including Bracada and Mad Play. Diogenes and Mr. Mutt departed in a cab together this morning.

life and was said to own more than 10,000 head of cattle at one time. Mrs. Hoots' father died in 1875 and her mother in 1919.

Mrs. Hoots and her two children, a son and daughter, own 1920 acres of Osage Indian land, 460 acres of which comprises a big ranch near Skiatook. In addition to the money Black Gold brings in to her, she also receives some $12,000 a year from the Government as an Osage Indian. This is the second consecutive year that a Tulsa-owned horse—at least a horse that Tulsa claims is Tulsa owned—has won the Derby. Last year Harry Sinclair's Zev copied the laurels. Tulsa still lays some claim to Sinclair, who accumulated his fortune in the oil game here but the oil magnate is now officially listed as being from New York.

No matter how you wear it— It's easy now to keep your hair smooth—in place—all day

EVERY man has to do something to keep his hair in place, if it's only to use a comb and brush. And comb and brush alone are rarely enough—too soon the hair is mussed again. Water does no good—it evaporates quickly. And anyway, constant dampening of the hair dries up the natural oils of the scalp, leaving the hair brittle and "dead." Old-fashioned pomades and oils, on the other hand, made hair too stiff and greasy. And so, for years, men's looks have been spoiled by their hair. For it makes no difference how well you're dressed—you can't look your best with straggly, unkempt hair.

Hair that stays the way you like it best But now men have learned a way to make their hair look as they want it to look—all day long. They have found in Stacomb what they have always sought—an easy, natural way to keep the hair looking always as trim as their favorite barber leaves it. That is why today, wherever you go, you find well-dressed, successful, self-confident young men who keep their hair looking just as they want it—natural, soft, lustrous—all day long. These men would no more omit Stacomb from their morning routine than they would their daily shave. Stacomb makes the hair stay combed—makes you look all day just as you looked in your mirror this morning. Even just after a shampoo, when your hair is at its unruliest, Stacomb keeps it in perfect order. However dry and straggly your hair may be, you will find Stacomb just what you have always wanted. Women find Stacomb just the thing to control stray hairs, to make the curl stay in, and to keep bobbed hair in place. Stacomb is a light, velvety, invisible cream, non-staining and non-greasy. SIR GALAHAD III DEFEATS EPINARD IN MATCH RACE AT PARIS

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 19.—Sir Galahad III, winner of the Lincolnshire handicap, defeated Epinard, crack French four-year-old, and last year's three-year-old champion, in their match race at St. Cloud today.

Pierre Wertheimer's former champion was the overwhelming favorite at 5 to 3 and was picked by 35 racing experts out of 40 publishing selections for the day's races, only five giving Capt. Cohn's horse a possible chance.

French Horse Coming to U. S. Not in years has such interest been shown in a horse race in this country as was displayed today due to the class of the entrants and the conditions and the possibility of the outcome having a decided bearing on American racing this fall.

Pierre Wertheimer, the owner of Epinard, is a wealthy manufacturer of perfume who takes his recreation on the turf and it may be said in passing, is a sportsman. Epinard has been engaged to run a series of races, two in New York and one at Latonia, Ky., this fall against the best that America has to offer for prizes that amount in France to a considerable fortune.

When the match was made there was some dissatisfaction in racing circles over here and in spite of his remarkable record last season some feared Epinard might not be the best France had to offer for such a race.

Matters came to a climax a few weeks ago when Wertheimer sought out Capt. Jefferson Davis Cohn, the owner of Sir Galahad, and offered to run his horse against Sir Galahad in a match at 1200 meters for a private sweepstakes. Epinard to carry 130 pounds to Sir Galahad's 119. Wertheimer at the time laid

Capt. Cohn a side bet of 250,000 francs to 120,000. Both horses were specially prepared for the match. Epinard is trained by Eugene Leigh, an American well known on the tracks on both sides of the Atlantic, while Sir Galahad is trained by Tom Denman, an Englishman of the old school of horsemen. Malton Laflitte where Epinard was trained, backed the horse to a man, with few takers, although they offered 5 to 4.

Epinard up to today had run only one race this season, a six-furlong event at Longchamps, a fortnight ago, which he won in a gallop. He appeared high in flesh and short of work.

Critics were unanimous last year in believing that Epinard was the fastest horse at six furlongs they ever had seen.

Sir Galahad and Epinard had not met before today. The former was one of the leading 3-year-olds in France last year. After winning the Lincolnshire this spring he was beaten a neck on his first start in France but has since won two races.

American Ride Both Horses. Two American jockeys were chosen to ride the rivals. Everett Haynes, for Epinard, Frank O'Neill, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., for Sir Galahad.

Haynes has been ill for a number of weeks and it was thought that the mount would have to be given to Guy Garner, also an American, but he recovered sufficiently to warrant Wertheimer and Leigh in taking a chance with him. Haynes has ridden Epinard in three races.

Health Expert Warns of Tuberculosis.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, May 19.—Death from tuberculosis in the United States has greatly decreased in the last 25 years, Dr. Herman N. Bupde-son, City Commissioner of Health, said yesterday. Much remains to be done, however, he declared. "Tuberculosis is responsible for one-eighth of all deaths and is the cause of one third of the deaths occurring from 15 to 40 years of age," he asserted. "Tuberculosis is an infectious, communicable disease, due to a germ called tubercle bacillus. It is spread through careless coughing and spitting, through impure milk and water, and in other ways."

RAIL UNIONISTS QUIT PROGRESSIVE MEETING

Object That Wisconsin Meeting Was Not Furthering La Follette Candidacy.

By the Associated Press.
MADISON, Wis., May 19.—Charging that the meeting was called for other reasons than sponsoring the candidacy of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin for President, and that their orders were not given full representation in the meeting, members of the five leading railroad labor unions withdrew from the State convention held here yesterday to organize the Wisconsin conference for progressive political action.

The split in the convention occurred shortly after the meeting got under way and when the railroad union group voiced disapproval to the organization plan. Leaders of the group said that the conference was intended to organize opposition to Gov. John J. Blaine for the governorship and declared they opposed the body on that ground.

The conference favored formation of a new national political party and elected three delegates to represent the State of Wisconsin at the meeting of the national body at Cleveland July 4.

Illinois Labor Party Names Gubernatorial Candidate.

By the Associated Press.
PEORIA, Ill., May 19.—Naming themselves "The Labor Party of Illinois" and selecting Duncan McDonald of Springfield as their candidate for the governorship, 50 accredited delegates met here yesterday. They instructed their State Executive Committee to use every means possible to get the co-operation of the two other Farmer-Labor parties in Illinois.

The platform adopted favors: Public ownership of public utilities. Government banking, public control of natural resources, eight-hour day in all industries with further provision adjusting hours of work as to afford employment for all; child labor law; abolition of use of injunction in labor disputes; compulsory education law; equal wages for equal work, regardless of race, color, creed; abolition of contract labor on public works; immediate steps to curb gambling in grain and elimination of landlordism and tenantry and securing of the land to the users of the land.

Chicago Federation Quits Farmer-Labor Party.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, May 19.—The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a report submitted by John Fitzpatrick, its president, in which it was declared that "The only bona fide Farmer-Labor party is the one launched by the American Federation of Labor," and the charge was made that other similar organizations "are masquerading for various purposes and for various persons." Fitzpatrick said adoption of the report meant that the Chicago Labor body was severing relations with the Farmer-Labor party.

WOMEN JUDGE, JURY AND COUNSEL IN RUSSIAN COURT

Are Lenient With Mother Who Was Charged With Beating Her Child to Death.

By the Associated Press.
YAROSLAVL, Russia, May 19.—Bolshevik Russia's policy of giving women a larger voice in the affairs of the country was strikingly illustrated by the trial, just concluded, of an unemployed working woman named Antonova, on the charge of beating her 3-year-old daughter so badly that the child died from the effects of the punishment.

The judge, jury, counsel for both the defense and prosecution, and even the courtroom and audience consisted of women. Madame Antonova faced her accusers in the largest theater of the city, as several thousand women looked on pityingly. Tempering her condemnation of the crime with true feminine sympathy, the prosecutor declared that while society would regard the offense as a brutal one, the prisoner's act was attributable to the conditions of misery and oppression under which the working classes were forced to live during

BREAD

A Powerful Story of Today
By Charles G. Norris
AUTHOR OF "BREAD" (Copyright, 1924.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

"I DON'T think C. B. would like it; I don't think he would want to have a secretary who was married to somebody in the same office."

Jeannette felt that this would be a fact. No matter how well she might please Mr. Corey, a secretary who was married to another employee of the company would not be satisfactory. It was highly probable that in the event of her marriage he would be unwilling for her to continue with him.

No, it was plain that if she married Roy, she must resign, she must let go her ambition, her hopes for success in business, and she must accept Flatbush, and the dismal little brick house, the unprosperous neighbors, and the lonely, lonely days.

Well—suppose—suppose—suppose she didn't marry!

The relief the idea brought was startling. But she couldn't bring herself to give up Roy—she couldn't hurt him! She loved him—she loved him dearly! Never in the last few months since he had come back to her from California had she been so sure she loved him as now. Those eager blue eyes of his, that unruly stuck-up hair, that quaint smile, that supple, boyish figure—so sinuous and young and clean—she couldn't give them up!

A battle began within her. It was the old struggle—the struggle of ambition and independence, against love and drudgery, for marriage meant that to her; she could think of it in no other way.

"Thank you very much, Miss Sturgis." "That's fine, Miss Sturgis." "Please arrange this, Miss Sturgis." "Miss Sturgis, will you kindly attend to this matter yourself?"

These from Mr. Corey, and in the office she overheard: "Well—get Miss Sturgis to do that." "Better ask Miss Sturgis." "Miss Sturgis will know." "If you want C. B.'s O. K. get Miss Sturgis to put it up to him."

It was wise to her. She felt herself growing ever more confident, established, secure.

"Now, Janny—what are you going to do about a house or an apartment or something where we can begin housekeeping? Gee, I hate the idea of boarding! We ought to have a place we can call our home. April second is only two weeks off, and I don't suppose it's possible to find anything now. We'll have to go to a hotel or a boarding house for a while until we can look 'round. . . . Do you realize, Miss Sturgis, you're going to be Mrs. Roy Beardsley inside of a fortnight!"

"Roy—dear!" she exclaimed helplessly.

"But, my darling—you've got to make up your mind."

Make up her mind? She could not. She listened dumbly, miserably while her mother and sister discussed, with the man she had promised to marry, the details of the wedding, and what the young couple had better do until they could find a suitable place in which to start housekeeping.

"We'll go over to the church on Eighty-ninth Street about six o'clock, and Doctor Pittgibbons will perform the ceremony and then we'll come back here for a happy wedding supper," planned Mrs. Sturgis confidently.

On what was she expected to live? asked Jeannette, mutinously, of herself. Twenty-five dollars a week for both of them? It had seemed ample when they first discussed it. Her mother's income for herself and two daughters had rarely been more and frequently less. Mrs. Sturgis paid $30 a month rent for the apartment, and Alice was supposed to have $10 a week on which to run the table; in reality she provided the food that sustained the three of them at an expenditure of one dollar a day. But at $40 a month for food and $20 or $25 a month for rent and at least $5 a week for Roy's lunches and carfare, what was she, Jeannette, to have left to spend on clothes or amusement? She would be a prisoner in that dismal little Flatbush house, bound hand and foot to it for the lack of carfare across the river to indulge in a harmless inspection of shop windows! Now she was free—now she could get herself a gay petticoat if she wanted one, or a new spring hat in time for Easter, or take Alice and herself to a Saturday matinee and nibble chocolates with her, hanging excitedly over the rail of the gallery from front row seats! And she was to relinquish all this liberty, which now was actually hers, actually her own to enjoy and delight in rightfully and lawfully, and manacle her hands, river chains about her ankles, and enter this prison, whose door her mother, her sister and Roy held open for her, and where they expected her to remain contentedly and happily for the rest of her life!

It was too much! It was preposterous! It was inhuman! She didn't love any man enough to make a sacrifice so great. She was self-supporting, independent—beholden to no one—she could take care of herself for life if necessary, and after her room and board were paid for, she would always have $15 a week—$60 a month!—to spend as foolishly or as wisely as she chose with no one to call her to account. She hugged her little Saturday envelopes to her breast; they were hers, she earned them, she would never give them up—never—never—never!

She persuaded Roy to postpone the wedding. There was no special need for hurry. It would require a lot more saving before they could properly furnish a little house or an apartment; it was much wiser for them to start in right; in a few months they could have two or three hundred dollars. She presented the matter to him in a rush of words one evening and, as she had foreseen, he was overborne by her vehemence. Roy was sweet-tempered, he was amiable, he was always willing to give way in an argument. Often she had felt impatient with him for this easy tractability. He didn't have enough backbone! Even now his readiness to concede what she asked disappointed her. Something within her clamored for an indignant rejection of her proposal. She wanted him to insist with an oath that their marriage must take place at once, that she must make good her promise without further to-do. He lost something very definite in her regard at that moment; he never meant quite so much to her again. It was the pivotal point in their relationship.

Alice let her hands and sewing fall into her lap when her sister told her the marriage was to be postponed, and said anxiously: "Oh, Janny—I'm awfully sorry," but her mother unexpectedly approved. "There's no need of your rushing into all the troubles and worries of marriage, dearie—until you're quite, quite prepared. I think you're very wise to wait a little while; it's right and proper; you and Roy are showing a lot of real common sense. You'll have some capital to start in with, and you can take your time about finding just the right kind of a place to live in. And then I mean I'm going to have my darling all summer. . . . Only," she added with a reproachful glance at the girl and a pout of lips and cheeks, "I wish you'd give up that horrid, old office and stay at home with your mother and sister, and have a few months to yourself before you fly away to be a bride."

What a relief to know she had escaped for a time at least the net that had been spread for her! With head held high, and a free heart, with eager step and a pulse tuned to the joy of living, Jeannette plunged on with her work.

NEED OF VARIOUS SORTS OF MARRIAGE FOR MANY VARIOUS SORTS OF PERSON

"Flexibility in Matrimonial Relation, Rather Than Adherence to Wholesale Rules, Offers the Best Promise of Success and Permanency in the Marriage Problem."

"Marriage Is a Problem That Is Never Completely Solved and Settled, Once and for All, Until Both Parties Are Dead and Buried."

The fact that human beings differ as individuals is too widely accepted to permit of discussion, but the parallel fact that a combination of two individuals or personalities furnishes a resultant as different from other such combinations as individuals in the first place from each other, is one which seems quite to have escaped nearly all other writers upon this engrossing subject. The present article by Dorothy Canfield, therefore, stands out as exceptionally illuminating.

By DOROTHY CANFIELD

WHEN people ask me (they will keep asking anyone and everyone) such questions as, "Should a girl marry young or wait till her character is formed?" "Should a married woman have a profession?" "When there is friction at home should married couples divorce, or try to rub along together?" I reply seriously, "I'll try to answer your question, if you'll first answer one of mine—How big is a house?"

This always brings an outraged or amused stare and the answer, "How foolish! What kind of a house?" Then I come back at them triumphantly, "What kind of a girl? What kind of a wife? What kind of a profession? Above all, what kind of a marriage?"

Any little girl would laugh in the face of a giver of good advice who told her solemnly that "Brown is the most becoming color for tailor-mades, and pale pink for evening-dresses." Yet, grown-up little girls are expected to listen respectfully to aphorisms of exactly the same value, such as "Wives should keep close track of their husbands' business so that they can give intelligent advice and sympathy," or, "Never bother your husband about his business, he has enough of that at his office. Make his home a place of rest."

One Dependable Formula.

What we ought to realize about marriage is, first of all, that, like every other human relationship, it is a problem that is never completely solved and settled, once and for all, until both parties are dead and buried. And secondly, that it is an intensely personal affair and that nobody on earth can know as much about it as the two people involved. Consequently, advice and pressure from the outside are always given on the basis of insufficient information, and have at least a fifty-fifty chance of being wrong.

If there is one single human relationship which more than any other, cannot be run from the outside, it is the institution of marriage. There is no other which demands so inexorably from the people involved strength of character, intelligence and magnanimity, because in the nature of things, the only strength of character, intelligence and magnanimity which can do married people any good is their own. So that the best advice to give boys and girls about how to succeed in marriage is not to marry early or late, or to pick out blondes or brunettes, or to keep house or have a paid job; but to tell them from our hearts that the only thing that will help them to make a success of marriage is to grow as strong and wise and brave and gentle as possible, to use their own intelligence and to have the courage of their own convictions. As a matter of fact, this won't do them any good, because if they are wise enough to follow such advice, they will be wise enough not to need it. But we need not think, because there is no advice we can give them, that there is nothing we can do for them once they are married. There is a priceless service we can, everyone of us, render to married people, which, if conscientiously performed, would cure at least half the difficulties traditionally blamed on the institution of marriage.

The Service of Forbearance. What is this service? What could we do for them that would help them so greatly? We could let them alone; we could let them, without comment or blame, construct the sort of marriage which fits their particular case, rather than the sort which fits our ideas. We could leave them to struggle with a problem which, under the best circumstances, requires all their intelligence to solve, without crushing them under the weight of half-baked certainties and misquotations such as "No woman can be self-respecting if she is not a wage-earner." "A woman's place is the home, or there is no home." "No one can take the mother's place with children." The care and education of children should be in the hands of experts, not of untrained girls who happen to be mothers.

Complicated and Difficult. Is Section 2 satisfied to try to rescue from the clutches of Section 1 those couples who are unhappy in the suburban pattern? Not in the least. They are deeply annoyed because there are plenty of people who can construct happiness within that pattern, and they ardently desire to convince such people that there is something the matter with them or they couldn't be contented. They start with the excellent advice, "Don't believe implicitly what your mother-in-law's elderly preacher tells you from the pulpit about the right way to manage your marriage," but without a comma they continue at the top of their voices, "Believe implicitly what we tell you in our advanced books and magazines about how to manage your marriage."

DOROTHY CANFIELD

According to what we may call Section 1 of humanity, this is a successful marriage, and Section 1 penalizes any departure from it by vigorous disapprobation, by social ostracism, by hurting the children's feelings, by any low-down means it can lay its hands on.

Section 2 of humanity, observing the tyranny of Section 1, disapproves, not of the tyranny, (although it thinks it does) but of the particular mould which Section 1 is trying to force on marriage. Section 2, therefore, shouts out loudly (it is less numerous than Section 1, but has much more capacity for making a noise) that the only self-respecting combination for two modern human beings is for both of them to be short-haired and latch-keyed, and for both of them to work outside the home, leaving the children to specially trained experts, to pay whom the short-haired parents work in offices, like decent Twentieth Century folk.

There is only one possible standard by which to judge any marriage. If a man and a woman manage to construct with their children a life-in-common which keeps them reasonably happy, healthy, good and strong, with a permanent affection for each other, they have made a successful marriage, no matter by which sort of pattern. And if they fail in this, their marriage has been more or less a failure. No matter how exactly it may conform to the official mould of Section 1, a marriage is a failure, if the wife grows mentally lazy and childish in character. If the husband grows hard, materialistic and complacent, if the children are conscienceless and self-indulgent. No matter how exactly another couple may follow the advice of Freud, as filtered through the pages of his English speaking disciples, their marriage is a failure if the wife grows erratic and unbalanced, if the husband loses in self-control and continuity of purpose, if the children are bundles of disorganized nerves. The pattern followed in each case was a wrong one for that couple, and anyone who hears his voice to be heard, saying, "Don't believe implicitly what anybody tells you about how to manage your marriage. Use your own sense to see what kind of woman you are, what kind of man you have married, what is the best possible relationship attainable between you, what is the best sort of life you can arrange together out of the materials handed down to you by your ancestors and laid before you by the Twentieth Century in which you live."

PROPER IDEAS OF A PROPER MARRIAGE

"We could realize that every human being is different from every other and hence each couple's life is different from every other couple; and the limits of possibility and decency we set for people free to construct the sort of marriage life for their particular combination."

"Don't we do this already? We do not, a long shot. We have certain fixed convictions which we are as intolerant as Spanish inquisitors about. We have the fixed conviction that the pattern for a marriage is a house in a suburban lawn in front, a furnace in the cellar, doling on a shined dining-room table, and some car better Ford in the garage."

of pattern. And if they fail in this, their marriage has been more or less a failure.

A GLIMPSE OF THE ISLAND OF MAURITIUS.

ONE of the world's greatest love stories is that of Paul and Virginia. Statuettes and paintings of the two lovers fleeing before a storm may be found in every museum and copies are in many homes the world over.

The tale is founded in fact and was used for a novel by Bernardin de Saint-Pierre. The location of this immortal story is the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. Mauritius has had a strange and curious story. It has been the property of four European nations, the Portuguese, the Dutch, the French and the English. It was the home of a strange bird the like of which was never known elsewhere and which is now extinct, the dodo.

It has more than 450,000 inhabitants at the present time, which means that it is rather densely populated, since it has a total area of only 710 miles. Nearly two-thirds of the inhabitants are East Indians who were imported to work on the sugar plantations a century ago because the comparatively few black natives were as reluctant to work as they are in Africa and the South American States. There are also thousands of Chinese, English and Scotch colonies.

One of the remarkable things about this polyglot island is that the Government gives support to the Catholic, the Anglican and the Scotch State Church. Mauritius is said to be the only country outside of Scotland where this is done.

MEDITATION OF A MARRIED WOMAN By HELEN R.

THE PERVERSE

SWEET and sad are the uses of Meditation to choosing a wife.

Sometimes it looks as though the deliberate determination to wreck a life is the only way to find a mate.

Picking the wrong wife at random, her over to fit your ideal, has been the since the first caveman started it with a girl.

Why is it that, with the whole world right girl" waiting "just around the corner" make a 40-mile detour in search of the will make him most miserable?

Why, for instance, will the man tramp and the Great-outdoors invade delicate little thing who is hopelessly adoring little, perfumed baths and dainties out under the stars or pick up a bestial mate?

And why will the man who loves his fire choose for his fireside companion a girl who is a fox-trot through life to the dulcet strains of a fox-trot?

Why will a man who sighs for the joys of the game never fail to marry a girl who believes that the eternal fire that Sunday golf is moral suicide?

And why will a man who hates the time he has to crawl into evening clothes to the woman whose gospel is "GOSHOW"?

Why will a man who adores golf and strenuous sports marry a woman with a heart, who faints at the sight of blood, and whose complexion is a study in contrasts?

And why will a man who loves the "sophisticates" lose his heart to a little "funnies" and the fashions, and whose hke Irene Castle and vamp like Barbara?

Why will a man who suffers when where the hair-brush OUGHT to be or a box never hesitate to ask a brilliant woman from lamb until they are cooked, to give up waffles for him?

And why, oh, WHY, having gotten plenty wasn't looking for and doesn't want, dently set out to melt her down, and ham into the fixed mold of his ideal?

Isn't—nature—simply—WONDERFUL!

1810. When Napoleon was banished the English held on to Mauritius.

The prevailing language among the European residents at the present time is still French and the white population is 90 per cent Roman Catholic. The island has a splendid harbor. It is a great naval base and England maintains a garrison of 3000 troops there.

There are several good ways to remove hardened paint from windows, but one woman claims there is nothing quite as successful for this purpose as the small safety razor blades.

Some housewives tack netting on the kitchen and bathroom window shades instead of using screens. If small square of cardboard is put under the tack, the netting will be taut and the danger of tearing is minimized.

MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN By HELEN ROWLAND

THE PERVERSE SEX.
SWEET and sad are the uses of Man's Perversity—when it comes to choosing a wife.
Sometimes it looks as though the average man starts out with the deliberate determination to wreck his life—just for the excitement of it.
Picking the wrong wife at random, and then trying to "hammer" her over to fit your ideal, has been the most popular pastime ever since the first caveman started it with his little hatchet.
Why is it that, with the whole world to choose from and "the right girl" waiting "just around the corner," a man will deliberately make a 40-mile detour in search of the one woman on earth who will make him most miserable?
Why, for instance, will the man who revels in camping and tramping and the Great-outdoors invariably select for a life-mate a delicate little thing who is hopelessly addicted to high-heeled shoes, delicate chairs, perfumed baths and dining cars, and afraid to sleep out under the stars or pick up a beetle?
And why will the man who loves his pipe, his book and his log-house choose for his fireside companion a dizzy jazz-maniac who expects to fox-trot through life to the dulcet bird-notes of a saxophone?
Why will a man who sighs for conviviality and the flesh-pots and the joys of the game never fail to marry a human New England Conscience, who believes that the eternal fires are made of cigarettes and that Sunday golf is moral suicide?
And why will a man who hates the limelight and suffers every time he has to crawl into evening clothes, always lash himself for life to the woman whose gospel is "GO" and whose religion is "SHOW"?
Why will a man who adores golf and horseback riding and the strenuous sports marry a woman with a weak back and a chicken heart, who faints at the sight of blood, and never runs any risks with her complexion?
And why will a man who loves the classics and consorts with the "philistines" lose his heart to a little dumbbell, who reads only the "Ladies" and the fashions, and whose highest ambition is to dance like Irene Castle and vamp like Barbara La Marr?
Why will a man who suffers when he finds the clothes-brush where the hair-brush OUGHT to be or a handkerchief in his collar, never hesitate to ask a brilliant woman, who doesn't know ham from lamb until they are cooked, to give up her career in order to mix dollops for him?
And why, oh, WHY, having gotten precisely the sort of woman he wasn't looking for and doesn't want, does he promptly and confidently set out to melt her down, and hammer her out, and recast her into the fired mold of his ideal?
Isn't nature—simply—WONDERFUL!

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Dolly's New Sport Suit.
The kiddies can have lots of fun with old silk stockings by cutting them up into dainty sweater sets for their dolls.
Use the Tea Ball.
When using spices for flavoring broths or stews, put them in the tea ball and then place in the broth to boil. They can then be removed quickly and easily as soon as the desired flavor is obtained.
Number, Please.
If the tag containing the number of your crochet cotton should fall out of the ball—as it usually does—mark the number on the inside of the pasteboard spool. You will be glad you took this precaution when trying to match cotton some time later on.
Sweater Mending.
Should the elbows of your sweater begin to wear, don't wait until a hole appears, but with a large needle and yarn of the same shade follow the knitted thread back and forth until the thin place is reinforced. It will probably add months to the wear of your sweater.

How to Make Junket.
JUNKET, or "rennet custard," is milk that has been coagulated or curdled, a process not unlike one of the first steps in digestion. The curdling is brought about by the addition of "junket tablets" to the milk. Milk containing rennet will, if not disturbed, "set" in one piece resembling a custard. Junket differs little from milk in food value except for the presence of the sugar used in flavoring, but it gives variety to the diet. If served very cold it is refreshing in warm weather. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends this recipe:
2 cups of milk.
1 cup of sugar, honey or sirup.
1 Junket tablet.
1/4 teaspoonful of salt.
A few grains of nutmeg or cinnamon.
Warm the milk to about the temperature of the body, crush the tablet, and add it with the other ingredients to the milk. Pour into one large or several small dishes and place in a warm (not hot) place to harden. Cool before serving.

Chatterer Has Wicked Spring Thoughts
Beware of those with naught to do. For mischief they are sure to brew.
—Old Mother Nature.
It was the season of happiness. Spring is always the season of happiness. The sweet singers of the Smiling Pool were singing as only they can. Every day brought new songs to the Green Forest, the Green Meadows and the Old Orchard, for every day there were new arrivals of feathered folk returning from the Sunny South. There was so much joy and happiness everywhere that it didn't seem as if there could be room for anything else. Even dull, grumpy Prickly Porcupine the Porcupine felt the joyous spirit and made queer sounds, his way of expressing happiness.
Chatterer the Red Squirrel was happy. He was too happy to keep his tongue still. It was good to see the green things growing, to see the trees putting out new leaves, to feel that the hard times of winter were over. These things filled Chatterer's heart with happiness.
Now, would you suppose that into a happy heart wicked thoughts could creep? They can. They crept into the heart of Chatterer the Red Squirrel. And it was all because of his appetite. Yes, sir, it was all because of his appetite. It is queer what a lot of trouble appetite gets people into. Chatterer had plenty to eat, but he wanted a change. He was tired of nuts and acorns and seeds and corn. He had had these in plenty all winter. Now he was hungry for something different. Just what it was he wanted he wasn't quite sure until he noticed the special joyousness in the voice of Welcome Robin as the Merry Little Breezes brought it to him from the Old Orchard. "Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer!" cried Welcome Robin. "Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer!" cried Welcome Robin. And there was a new note in that song.
Chatterer's eyes sparkled wickedly. "I know what that means," said he. "It means that Welcome and Mrs. Robin have finished their nest and Mrs. Robin has laid an egg. Yes, sir, that's what it means, and now I know what it is I want. I want eggs. It is almost a whole year since I have tasted an egg. I simply must have some fresh eggs."

"Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer!" cried Welcome Robin.

that Mrs. Robin wouldn't lay any more in that nest. I'll wait until she gets through laying. Mrs. Bluebird probably has her eggs by this time, and so has Mrs. Phoenix. I wonder where they are nesting this year. I'll start right away and find out."

Scraping Scratches Tin.
FOR ordinary care, tin utensils should be washed in hot soapy water, rinsed in hot clear water, and dried thoroughly, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. A tin utensil that has food dried on it should be covered with a weak soda solution, heated for a few minutes, and then washed. Scraping scratches tin and may expose the iron or steel surface underneath, which may rust. Tin darkens with use, and this tarnish protects the tin; therefore tin utensils should not be scoured simply for the sake of making them bright.

HELPING THE SCHOOL CHILD By Emilie Hoffman

IF YOU have been carefully following the progress of your child in school you can now quite well judge what the chances are for passing the examinations in June. Even if your only guide is the reports you have regularly signed during the term, you can now tell in what subjects the child is weak.
If you have not had the time to give assistance from the start you can, at least, do your utmost now to save the child from the ignominy of "flunking" in the finals. It will mean so much to your son or daughter. If they are young children you may think another year in the same grade will not matter and that this will impress the work more thoroughly, but when the child gets into the teens the year lost now may mean much. At the end of the high school course or college career it means one year's loss of self-support.
A good tutor can accomplish much with a child. Possibly the

Once You Try This Remarkable Starch

YOU will be delighted with the wonderful lustre your curtains and all household fabrics have after being starched with Linit, the remarkable new starch discovery.
Linit penetrates the fabric, prolongs its life, and gives a soft, pliable finish that makes even ordinary cotton goods look and feel like linen.
This remarkable starch is made by an improved process that keeps it fluid after it cools.
AFTER Linit is thoroughly dissolved, according to directions, and is ready for use, you will notice it is THIN and FREE-RUNNING like water—with a "milky" appearance.
Use Linit according to directions and, unlike other starches, you will not find Linit stiff or jelly-like. This is one reason why Linit goes much farther than the old-fashioned kinds of starch and is easier to iron with.
Linit costs 10c at all Grocers

SUSPECT APPLIED FOR JOB MORNING AFTER MURDER OF MOLLIE MARGULIS

Former Policeman Held for Observation in Connection With Case Told Wabash Special Agent
He Had Been Seeking
Work Since 4 A. M.
That Day.

REFUTES IN PART HIS STORY TO POLICE

Other Portions of Prisoner's Statement Contradicted by His Wife and Woman at Whose Home
He Lived.

New facts learned today by city detectives investigating the Mollie Margulis murder mystery, contradicted defensive statements made by the former policeman who is held in the city hospital observation ward as a suspect. They did not add to the positive knowledge in the case, which has baffled investigators since the young woman's body, the clothing partly removed,
was found in a rear yard at 2343
Gamble street at 5:25 a. m. Friday.

It developed today that the former policeman, who has said he was at his boarding place, in the Gamble street neighborhood, until 6 a. m. Friday, applied for a job at downtown at 7:30 a. m. Friday, and said he had been up since 4 o'clock,
looking for work.

William E. Duffy, Wabash Railroad special agent in charge of the St. Louis terminal, was the man from whom he sought employment as a railroad special policeman.
Duffy arrived at his office, at Third street and Franklin avenue, about 7:45 a. m. Friday.

Frequent Applicant for Job.
"The man, whom I knew as a frequent applicant for a job, was waiting outside, and I was told afterward that he had been there for 10 minutes," Duffy said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "He didn't follow me into the office, but stood outside until I called him in, though he had shown plenty of assurance on his previous visits."

"He said, 'I've been up since 4 o'clock, looking for work.' He looked like it. His eyes were bloodshot, and his face was haggard and drawn, and he passed his hand frequently over his eyes. He looked to me as if he had been out all night, or at least since very early in the morning. He was wearing a neat-looking winter suit—not a police uniform."

"I told him I had no vacancy.
He had told me, on his previous visits, that his dismissal from the Police Department was due to a frame-up, but I had such information as I needed on that matter."

Charles Smith, one of Duffy's staff of special agents, said the man repeated to him the remark that he had been up since 4 o'clock, "looking for work all over town." He said the man seemed very despondent, and "looked as if he was about to cry."

Wife Intervened for Him.
Duffy said he recently got a letter from the man's wife, from whom he is separated, and who lives in a Missouri town, asking him to give the man a job, and saying he needed work.

The woman at whose home the suspect boarded, and who figured in the charge on which he was removed from the Police Department, has said, when questioned by Chief of Detectives Hoagland, that she shared the man's room Thursday night, that they went to bed at 9:30 p. m., and that she slept there until about 3:30 a. m., when she got up and went to the room of two girls living in the house.
The reason for this, she said, was that the father of one of the girls, who works at night, was due to arrive about 4 o'clock, and that he was accustomed to sleep with the man in question. "I didn't want him to find me in that room," she said.

She has said that she and the suspect got up about 5 o'clock, that she got his breakfast, and that he left the house when she did at 6
a. m.

Other Differences in Stories.
The suspect himself has said that he slept alone that night, and that he left the house about 6 a. m. Friday.

Why he should have said he was up since 4 a. m., looking for work, will be the line of renewed questioning of the suspect by Chief of Detectives Hoagland.

pect on Page 3, Column 4.

Old Car
Broke in Half

After Hard Trip.

Dear Editor:

Well here it is the open season for picnics again and on Monday morning our front yard looks like the chautauqua had stayed a couple of weeks extra. Last Sunday they was 10 or 11 of them little what nots from Detroit parked in line along the road and several passerbys thought we must be having a auction or something and come up to make inquiries and I was just about ready to get sore when a kid about 13 yrs. old that belonged to one of the picnickers pointed to our cow and says oh look mamma they have got a cow on that estate.

Well you can't stay very mad when they call your joint a estate and if one of them will pull something like that every Sunday I will try and not make no holler about them upholstering the front lawn with bread and sardine cans, but I can't help from wondering what that boy would of called the Swope place next door where they have got a 4 or 500 ft. front and I suppose he would of nicknamed it Asia.

Good Bare Foot Writer.

Speaking about the cow—this ain't Flossie, the one we had, but a brand new one, as Flossie had finally become just a ornament. The new one don't seem to be no special brand and ain't got no fam-ily tree or nothing. She is plain black and when we first got her we left it to the kiddies to give her a name and they thought it over all one day and then give her the name Blackie.

Kids will think of the d—t things. But for some reason an- other Blackie don't seem to like her name, at least she acts mad all the time and has showed signs of a vengeful spirit. It seems that on some parts of the estate they's quite a growth of what they call wild garlic which no cow could possibly enjoy eating it but Blackie eats it to get even and I will say she gets even. Sometimes you can shut your eyes while imbibing the oatmeal and pretend you are enjoy- ing the 11th table de hote at Ma- dame Gallia.

A few days of warmth and sun- shine certainly made the estate look beautiful when all the flower- and blossoms was out. All told they was in bloom at one time (4) hyacinths, two crocuses, a 4 dozen tulips and the fruit orchard. The last named is unluckily hid be- hind the garage so as the picnic parties can't enjoy it. Last yr. it yielded pretty near a strawberry box full of plums which came as a big surprise as when we bought the place they told us it was a cherry tree.

Annual work started last wk. on the tennis court. The men prom- ise to have it ready by Sept. this yr. as they ain't nowhere near as much to do to it as other yrs. as this winter only 1/4 of it caved in. Personally I ain't in no hurry as I agree with the U. S. tennis assn. that a man can't write and play tennis both and it is a whole lot less trouble to write because when you play tennis you half to wear special white shoes and pants and shirt but you can write in a ki- mona and slippers and in fact some of my best writing has been done entirely bare foot.

Three of the 4 kiddies was born in the spring time so we been hav- ing quite a orgy of birthdays and generally always when they's one it's right we ask the best of some- what he would like for presents and most always the reply is a pony or a sail boat or a parrot or something else that they ain't no chance of him getting.

But the 2d boy is different and today is his birthday and we asked him a wk. ago what he would like something that would clean the rust off his bicycle. That is the way he has always been and will always be the same way, not want- ing nothing and nothing is prob- ably what he will get.

A Deal in Cars.

The Mrs. decided a while ago that it was about time we was getting a new vehicle to ride the kiddies back and forth to school and back as the one we had been using for that purpose the last 2 or 4 yrs. was acting kind of sullen so we called up the man and told him to bring around a so and so and we asked him could we trade in our old one and he looked at same and kind of swallowed hard but says yes, but he would half to take it over to Port Washington to get it appraised.

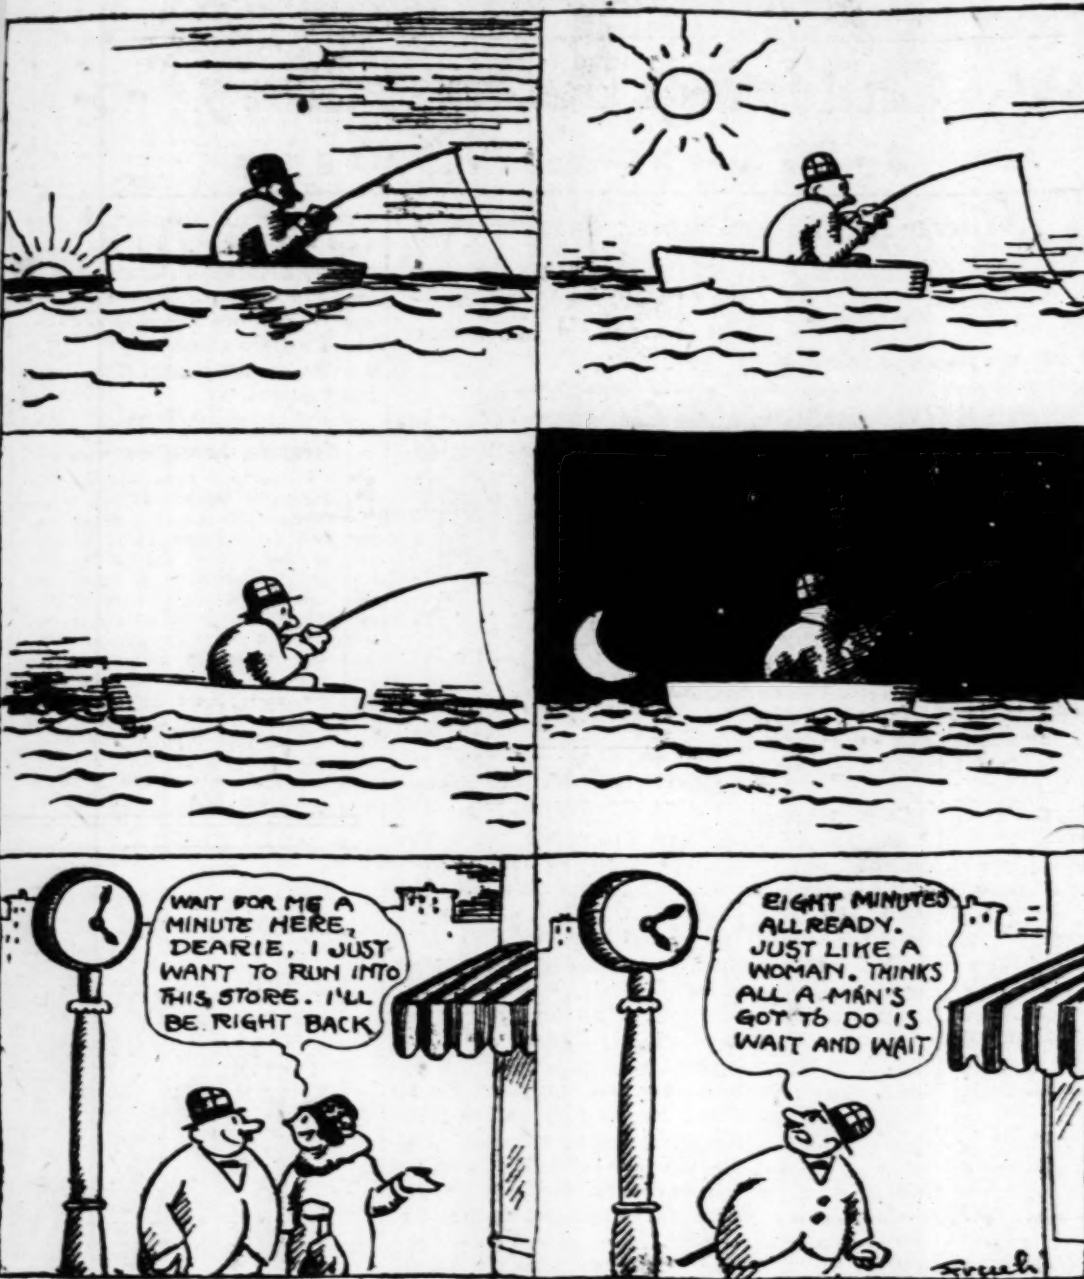

So we was scared to death for a 1/2 day as Port Washington is 4 miles from here and the betting was even that the good old wagon wouldn't never complete the round trip, but she done it all right and the deal was closed and the papers signed and now the kiddies is squawking because all the fun has been took out of their daily trips to and from school.

They always insisted on setting in the back seat of the old car and about 2 days out of every 5 the machine would part in the middle el- der going or coming and when the driver got to school or home and turned around to let them out they wouldn't be there but would be a mile or 2 up the road in the back 1/4 of the car, laughing at him. The car is supposed to seat 5 people, but if they are all heading to get to the same place together I would advice everybody to get in the front seat.

That is about all the Great Neck news only that everybody is tickled on acct. of the spring rains being over which means that the electric lights will probably stay on pretty regular unless they's a breeze or it gets cloudy or something. All citizens is mourning the loss of F. Scott Fitzgerald and wife who have moved to Hyeres, France, for 3 yrs. where Mr. Fitzgerald expects to do a whole lot of work. He says it is pretty near impossible to work in Great Neck. I wished he would show me some place where it ain't.
